

BIG BATTLE NOW RAGING AROUND LENS

ALLIES' OFFENSIVE NOW INVOLVES POSSIBILITY OF RECAPTURE OF LILLE.

GERMANS LOSE HILL 191

Admission of Loss of Important Position Contained in Berlin Statement—French Claim Further Gains.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Sept. 30.—The great struggle on the western front has now resolved itself clearly into a battle on Lens in Pas de Calais, nine miles west of Arras. The capture of this town with its radiating railways would bring into the foreground the possibility of retaking Lille.

Both north and south of Lens the allies hold high ground, dominating the town—the British on hill No. 70 and the French on hill No. 140, the high crest between Souchez and Vimy. The official report from Paris last night said merely that this crest had been reached, so that presumably a terrific counter attack is raging there with final mastery of this important position in hand. Rain, fog and soggy ground have been hampering both contenders and limiting the activities of aircraft. A few days of clear weather might have marked bearing on developments.

The offensive of the allies thus far has been confined to stretches of the front amounting to less than thirty miles in all. The general belief in England is that these attacks are only the prelude of what is coming. At any rate, the public would be disappointed if the movement were not sustained. There is the usual speculation to the shifting of German forces from the east to the west, although nothing like reliable information is lacking as against the report that some Prussian troops have been hurried west, there are rumors that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, still bent on taking Dinkov, has been reinforced and is now making a dash for the south, apparently have received fresh troops.

The victory of the British over the Turks in Mesopotamia brings General Sir John Nixon's men within 150 miles of Bagdad. The news came unheeded to London, as the fighting in that quarter had been almost forgotten. The German offensive in the Champagne region north of the town of Meuse.

Paris, Sept. 30.—In continuation of the general offensive movement on the western front, the allies have captured an important defense work of the Germans near Arras. It was officially announced today that it was captured by the British.

UNABLE TO LOCATE NINE MEN IN MINE

Now Believe the Men Entombed in Coal Mine Have Lost Their Lives.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Landford, Pa., Sept. 30.—Traces of the nine men who were entombed in the Coalbrook collieries of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company have not been found. It is now believed they are dead. Efforts to reach the entombed miners are being made from two directions, and officials of the company hope to be able to find the men today.

NO MORE NIGHT COURT FOR CITY OF CHICAGO.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Sept. 30.—Taps sounded for Chicago's night police court today. After an existence of nine months, the court was ordered abolished by Chief Justice Olson of the Municipal court.

"It's no good. The only ones benefiting by it are policemen who arrest women and drunks who would spend the night in jail anyway," said Olson. "Party arrests were increased and the operation of the court was a useless burden to the city."

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE THROUGHOUT CITY OF PARIS. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Sept. 30.—Although most of the laborers employed by the city are at the front, municipal improvements are not being neglected. The Camps Elisees is being repaved, as well as a number of other streets, and public buildings needing repairs are receiving attention. Many of the workers are Belgians freed from military service and Frenchmen who are in military classes not yet called, or who have been declared exempt from military duty.

HOT WORDS PRECEDE ACTION OF FARMERS INDORSING WILSON

Charges of Treasonable Utterances Made Before Resolution Finally Passes Omaha Convention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Omaha, Neb., Sept. 30.—After a heated discussion in which charges of "treasonable utterances" were made, the Farmers' National Congress today adopted resolutions endorsing President Wilson's foreign policy. The resolution introduced by Frank O'Dell of Omaha follows:

"Resolved, by the Farmers' National Congress, that we commend the foreign policy of President Wilson, who has stood at the head of the American nation during one of the most critical and trying periods of its history.

"Resolved, that we express confidence in the patriotism, courage and diplomatic ability.

"Resolved, that we pledge him our unwavering support in his endeavor to defend the rights of American citizens and to maintain the inviolable neutrality of this nation."

Mr. O'Dell led the fight for the resolution and John Schmidt of Waco, lead the opposition. Schmidt was seconded by Charles Wooster, who declared President Wilson's foreign policy to be weak.

"He's a big bully—a bully of nations," declared Wooster. "The question of calling an amendment offered by Schmidt, resulted in a vote of 215 to 48 in favor of resolutions supporting Wilson."

HIGH LICENSE HITS MANHATTAN SALOONS

Six Hundred Saloons Forced Out of Business in New York City by $300 Raise.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 30.—Increase of $300 in the retail liquor license fees which becomes effective tomorrow, will force 600 saloons out of business in Manhattan and Brooklyn and reduce the share of business in this section about $350,000, according to estimates of officers of retail liquor dealers' associations. The increase brings the cost of license up to $1,500.

The excise commissioner for Manhattan said today he believed people would be not drinking much as in the past years and in his opinion moving picture shows were keeping men from saloons.

WILSON ASKS STAY IN HILLSTROM CASE

Swedish Envoy Appeals to President to Ask for Stay of Execution for Man to Be Shot Friday.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Sept. 30.—At the request of Swedish Minister W. A. F. Ekengren, President Wilson today telegraphed to Governor Sir John Hillstrom, a Swedish subject, sentenced to be shot in the Utah state penitentiary tomorrow. Hillstrom is charged with the murder of a British officer.

The president today received a telegram from the Swedish minister saying he had a fair trial and his government had no objection to his execution. The Swedish minister said he believed insolent behavior of Hillstrom during his trial had prejudiced the court and jury against him.

GALES IN ATLANTIC DELAY FRENCH LINER

Steamer Espagne Arrives in New York Two Days Late After a Stormy Passage.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 30.—The steamer Espagne arrived today from Bordeaux two days late having been back by terrific gales. Tuesday the steamer was hoisted to twenty-four hours, during the height of a south-west gale, which caused enormous seas to wash over the vessel. After leaving Bordeaux, the Espagne steamed with all lights out at night, and used various precautions during the day to disguise her movements, as German submarines had been reported in the Bay of Biscay. A number of Americans who have been doing hospital work in France, were among the arrivals.

WAR BRINGS ABOUT SCARCITY OF LABOR

Austrians and Italians Called Home Has Effect in Coke Manufacture.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Connellsville, Pa., Sept. 30.—Scarcity of labor in the coke region is beginning to be felt by producers, but in the face of this conditions, some 3,000 ovens were this week added to the active list.

The labor shortage is due to the fact that when the European war came on, scores of coke workers were at their homes in Italy and Austria. They did not return, and there has been the usual influx of new labor from these countries.

Production and shipment of coke continue at approximately 300,000 tons a week, with a material increase expected next week.

GREEK PARLIAMENT VOTES A LARGE SUM FOR MOBILIZATION

Appropriation of $90,000,000 to Cover Expenses is Made by Deputies Who Indorse Premier's Action.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Athens, Sept. 30.—The Greek chamber in a special session today ratified the action of the government in declaring a general mobilization of the army and authorizing a loan of $90,000,000.

Premier Venizelos was greeted enthusiastically when he entered the building. He said in an address to the chamber that mobilization of the Greek forces was indispensable on account of Bulgaria's military measures. He stated, however, that the object in mobilization was to maintain armed neutrality and that she had no intention of adopting an aggressive attitude toward Greece and Serbia.

Notwithstanding these explanations, the premier continued, the situation was still grave.

Greek Parliament Acts. London, Sept. 30.—An Athens dispatch to Exchange Telegraph company filed yesterday said "Bills proclaiming a state of siege in Macedonia, providing for the families of men called to the colors, providing a credit of 150,000,000 drachmas ($30,000,000) to meet the expenses of mobilization were enthusiastically approved at a meeting of the chamber today. Premier Venizelos, who was given an ovation, stated the reason why Greece was obliged to mobilize, and emphasized the gravity of the situation. Former Premier Gounaris expressed his approval of Mr. Venizelos' declaration."

IS ZEPPELIN FLEET ENROUTE FOR RAID ON BRITISH COAST?

Six of Kaiser's Gigantic Air Craft Sighted Near Brussels Bound in Westerly Direction.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Sept. 30.—Six Zeppelin dirigible balloons were sighted today over Aerschot, twenty-three miles northeast of Brussels. The airships were charged with coal for a raid on the British coast. This information was contained in a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Central News Agency.

Due west of Aerschot lies Dover and the English channel.

TORREON IS TAKEN BY CARRANZA ARMY

Capture of a Number of Important Cities Reported in Message From Carranza Soldiers at Border.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] El Paso, Tex., Sept. 30.—Announcing the occupation of Torreon, Gomez, Pareda and Lerdo, neighboring cities, a message from General E. Murguia, dated at Torreon, was transmitted to the Carranza consulate here today by the Carranza governor of Coahuila state.

Carranza Troops on Border. Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 30.—A considerable increase in Carranza troops opposite this part of the border was reported today from several reliable sources on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande. About 1,500 troops have taken stations along the river, approximately opposite the territory where American patrols are watching for possible invasions of Texas by Mexican bandits. At the Carranza consulate here today it was said some of the Carranza troops arrived yesterday at Matamoros.

Causes No Uneasiness. Military authorities here did not consider the report a bad sign. It was believed that Carranza authorities are considering a change in their recent policy of leaving the Mexican side of the river bank unguarded.

HAITI REBELS AGREE TO TERMS OF PEACE

Promise American Officers to Quit Fighting Following a Conference on Wednesday.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Cape Haitien, Sept. 30.—The Haitian rebels who have been resisting the American troops, resulting in several fatal encounters, recently have agreed to lay down their arms. A conference was held yesterday between the principal rebel leaders and American officers. The rebels accepted the conditions offered by the Americans and promised to cease armed resistance.

AMERICANS HONORED FOR WORK IN SERBIA

Forty-three Physicians and Engineers Receive Decorations for Checking Cholera Epidemic.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Nish, Serbia, via London, Sept. 30.—Crown Prince Alexander has decorated forty-three American physicians and sanitary engineers in recognition of their services in stopping the epidemic which broke out in Serbia after the war began.

ALL DETAILS ARRANGED TO SELL BONDS

METHODS OF MARKETING $500,000,000 ISSUE WILL BE ANNOUNCED LATE TODAY.

PROTESTS IN BRITAIN

Manchester Guardian Objects to Flotation of Loans in America, Claiming It Will Impair English Credit.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 30.—The committee in charge of the sale of $500,000,000 Anglo-French bonds has cleared away a number of details concerning the methods of marketing the issue, and expected to announce the entire program late today.

Chief of the details already settled are that the life of the underwriting syndicate is to be sixty days, the sums subscribed by banks will be left on deposit with the syndicate until needed and then withdrawn proportionately, and the profit of the syndicate members will be one and three-quarters per cent, the remaining one-quarter per cent being used for expenses. The syndicate members may participate without restriction as to amount of their subscription.

Undecided details concerned chiefly the date of the offering and the terms of installment investors.

Opposition in England. London, Sept. 30.—Asserting that American bankers naturally prefer a loan with some $10,000,000 profit to the importation of gold, which brings no profit, the Manchester Guardian declared editorially, "There is no reason, however, why the government should indulge in what has every appearance of being a blunder as costly politically as financially."

Sidney, the London loan will be invalid unless approved by parliament, the Guardian adds.

"Seldom has a financial transaction been imposed upon British people without their protest," the paper declared. "It may be Mr. Morgan and his associates have done the allies a good service and have earned a reward, but if so it will be paid by the British people with their 2,000,000 pounds and forego a loan so damaging to our credit."

Arrangements Made. New York, Sept. 30.—Complete details of methods of marketing the $500,000,000 joint Anglo-French five year bonds probably will be announced today by J. P. Morgan & Company.

MAY OFFER REWARD FOR DOUBLE SLAYER

Cok Pixley to Confer With Governor on Offering Reward for Murderer in Mueller Crime.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Sept. 30.—Colonel R. B. Pixley of the governor's staff left for Kiboum this noon to meet Governor Philipp for a conference in regard to the offer of a $500 reward for apprehension of the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Mueller, who were slain at the Milwaukee last Saturday.

Colonel Pixley said today he was absolutely satisfied the deaths were not caused by suicide, but that the Muellers were murdered.

The loss of the Vincent was first made known by a dispatch from London yesterday, which stated that the ship had been captured. No details had been given concerning the place or nature of the event, owing, however, to the fact that the Vincent may have been burned as the result of a mine explosion.

TO PREVENT RIOTS IN GARMENT STRIKE

Additional Chicago Police Patrol Clothing Establishment Districts Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Sept. 30.—Additional police were ordered out today to patrol the Chicago clothing manufacturing district to prevent further violence resulting from the strike of garment workers.

Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Garment Workers of America, issued a statement urging the strikers to refrain from violence. Two hundred or more striking garment workers and sympathizers made a demonstration in front of a cloak shop today and windows were broken, but no one was injured. Police arrested a rioter and an over-zealous striker was arrested. The proprietor told police trouble started when union pickets failed in an effort to get his employees to quit work.

TRACTION COMPANY PAID STATE TAXES TOTALLING $932.91

City Receives Eighty-five Per Cent of Amount, or $792.97.—Belt-City Company Tax is Higher.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—The Janesville Traction company pays a total tax of $932.91 this year, according to the announcement of the state tax commission today. The state retains 15 per cent, or $139.94, and the city 85 per cent, or $792.97 goes to the city of Janesville.

The Rockford Interurban Railway company will pay a total tax of $4,428.90, and the Janesville Traction company will pay a total tax of $4,428.90, and the Janesville Traction company will pay a total tax of $4,428.90.

Street railway companies of Wisconsin will pay a total tax of $285,334.50. This is an increase of about $15,000 over last year's taxes, but is due to the fact that several small public service companies which were heretofore assessed locally have since been absorbed by street railway properties and are now assessed by the state. Of the total taxes assessed, 15 per cent goes to the state and 85 per cent is distributed among the towns, villages and cities through which the lines operate. The 15 per cent retained by the state amounts to $42,800.17, as compared with $32,278.02 last year.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light company will pay a total tax of $406,483.85, of which $345,611.10 will be distributed among the towns and city and $60,872.75 will be retained by the state. The city of Milwaukee will receive $322,278.02.

The Milwaukee Heat & Traction company will pay a total tax of $18,616.66, of which $9,625.84 will be distributed between the towns and $9,990.82 will be retained by the state. The city of Milwaukee will receive $17,259.63.

The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light & Power company will pay a total tax of $63,044.33, of which $53,809.11 will be distributed locally and $9,235.22 will be retained by the state. The city of La Crosse will receive $7,935.09.

The Wisconsin Electric Railway company pays a tax of $8,627.77, of which $7,462.87 will be distributed locally, the city of Oshkosh receiving $4,628.87. Total taxes to be paid by some of the other companies are smaller.

AMERICAN SAILING SHIP IS BLOWN UP

Meager Reports Show That Vessel Vincent is Total Loss—Crew Reported Saved.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Sept. 30.—The American sailing vessel Vincent was blown up Sept. 27, by a mine off Cape Orloff, in the White sea and is a total loss. The crew, however, was saved. The vessel was en route from Seattle to London. They are being treated in a hospital at Archangel. Consular dispatches to the state department today reported the disaster.

English Report. London, Sept. 30.—The captain, first and second mate and carpenter of the American sailing vessel Vincent were injured in a fire which destroyed the vessel.

The loss of the Vincent was first made known by a dispatch from London yesterday, which stated that the ship had been captured. No details had been given concerning the place or nature of the event, owing, however, to the fact that the Vincent may have been burned as the result of a mine explosion.

MANY CHINESE PORTS WILL NOT BE OPENED TO FOREIGN TRAFFIC

Peking, Sept. 29.—It is announced by the state department that Kiao-chow will not be opened to foreign trade in Shantung province which China will open to foreign trade. Under the treaty agreement with Japan that China will open to foreign trade the ports of Kiao-chow, Tientsin, Peking, and other ports, the Japanese minister and arrangement for the opening of ports, the State department officials and Mr. Hoki have been in conference almost continuously for several weeks as to the ports which will be thrown open to foreign trade in Shantung and Inner Mongolia. The list is awaited with much interest by business men familiar with trade in China.

Jehol, in Inner Mongolia, the ancient capital of China, is another well known city which the State department has announced will not be opened to foreign trade. It is of importance as it is on the railway, five days by caravan northwest of Peking. The Chinese officials are evidently working by process of elimination and have announced up to date, to close the names of cities which will not be opened. No intimation has been given as to the ports which will be opened.

The State department has issued lists showing the following cities in Shantung will remain closed: Kumi, Lin-ching, Tschow, Tang-chip-ko, Yen-chow, and other cities. The cities in Inner Mongolia which will not be thrown open are: Jehol, Li-chuan, Shiao-kulun, Kailu, Lin-shi, Tai, Ching-peng, Ping-chuan, Wu-tan-cheng.

VETERANS EXHAUSTED FROM G. A. R. PARADE NOW BACK IN RANKS

Most of 200 Taken to Hospitals on Wednesday Are Ready to Take Part in Reunion Program.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Sept. 30.—Most of the 200 civil war veterans taken to hospitals yesterday when they became exhausted in the G. A. R. parade, had fully recovered today and were ready for participation in the remainder of the annual reunion program. A majority of the aged men stood the march from the capital to the White House well but others were forced to drop out of line because of exhaustion.

Hospitals and emergency relief stations, were kept busy, but there were no fatalities. Most of the cases were treated and immediately dismissed. The veterans had a busy day before them with a reception at the White House by President Wilson to the surviving officers of the civil war, a business session at Camp Emory, headquarters of the G. A. R., and a dedication of jubilee tablet at Manassas, Virginia. Among those expected to attend the White House reception were Col. D. J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., and three surviving commanders in chief—Major Leo Rossier, Captain Beers and Lieutenant E. L. Torrance.

Other interesting events included a camp reunion, exhibitions and drills by the signal and medical corps of the United States army on the White House grounds, and dog watches. The day was to be brought to a close with meeting of the resolution committee and a reception of Commander-in-Chief Palmer by the guards and veterans.

Colonel David J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the G. A. OCONOMOWOC RAILROAD

MEN VIEW PAUL HOWE; TO WAUPUN TOMORROW

This morning G. F. Wright and James G. McDonald, employees of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, were at the county jail to view Paul Howe, Beloit highwayman, who has been sentenced to seven years in the state prison from the Beloit municipal court. These two men figured as the victims of a hold-up at Oconomowoc recently and came to Janesville this morning to see if they could identify Howe as the highwayman. George Jackson, partner of Howe, and who, it is said, has been implicated by the Beloit court in the hold-up, was also at the county jail at Waupesha for the Oconomowoc crime. Both the railroad men stated this morning that Jackson looked more like the person who held up the train at the point of the gun and obtained about sixty dollars in money and a large number of checks. Howe was made to put on his coat and hat so as to make an appearance that would be easy for the two Oconomowoc men to identify him. Two other men, Paul Weber and P. Stever, are to view Paul this afternoon. The county jail authorities plan to take Howe to Waupun tomorrow.

Buffalo, Sept. 30.—Six thousand employees of the Lackawana Steel company will receive an increase in pay from eight to ten percent, beginning Saturday. The company announced it had experienced six months of heavy business, mostly war orders.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE TRIALS SUCCESSFUL

Radio Messages Yesterday Conveyed Across Continent Through New Invention.

Long distance communication across the continent through the use of wireless telephones was accomplished yesterday for the first time in history. The successful transmission of the human voice by radio from the great naval plant at Arlington, Va., to the naval station at Mare Island, California, over 2,500 miles away, came after months of experiment. The work was accomplished by the American Telegraph and Telephone company and the Western Electric company. The naval department also was a participant in the work. Secretary Daniels is said to have predicted that the further development of wireless telephony would make great changes in long distance communication, both for military and naval service in commercial usage.

RARE COMEDY IN KLEINE'S "THE FIXER"

Biggest Film Laugh of the Season Shown to Crowded House at Myers Theatre Last Night.

One laugh followed another in rapid succession in the latest George Kleine comedy, "The Fixer," which featured Bickel and Watson, the comedy team who are the stars of the map some years ago. "The Fixer" is founded on that familiar stage comedy "Hello Bill" by W. M. Gibson.

The imitatively funny work of Bickel and Watson, plus the naturally ludicrous situations of the story made "The Fixer" a comedy as fresh and amusing as it was unusual. Unlike other motion picture comedies "The Fixer" did not depend upon the antics of an individual for its laughs nor did it in any way resemble the ordinary slapstick hodge-podge of ordinary comedy subjects.

"The Fixer" was a clean straight through, free from vulgarity, a chock full of hearty snickers and produced with the elaborate detail and exquisite technique that characterize the Kleine film.

"Temper," Shown at Majestic, Proves Attractive.

Henry Waltham's appearance in the three-act drama "Temper," at the Majestic yesterday, was witnessed by a good sized crowd of people anxious to see the much-talked-of star in emotional acting. And they were certainly not disappointed, because the subject was a master work in the portrayal of the emotions. Mr. Waltham played the part of the young man who inherited his father's uncontrollable temper, and who, in an outburst, killed his father; the part gave him full opportunity to run the gamut of the emotions.

Excellent as the subject was as a strong drama, there were some who simply dropped in for mere entertainment, and it was no doubt a trifle too "heavy" for them. The remark was overheard "It was fine, but I didn't like it as well as yesterday's picture, 'The Maling,' because that was so much happier."

STEEL SPLINTER IN EYE WHILE WORKING ON AUTO

W. E. Childs, an employee of the Krummer garage, returned last night from Chicago, where he underwent an operation for the removal of a steel splinter from his right eye. Mr. Childs was injured while working in the garage, and was taken to Chicago on Tuesday night. The surgeon used a powerful magnet to draw the thin piece of steel to one side and then cut it out. He will continue under the care of local doctors until the member is well. It is expected that the sight will not be impaired.

ENGINEER TO TALK ON STREET LIGHTING

Problems of Ornamental Street Lights in Janesville Will Be Explained at Public Meeting.

Janesville's problems of street lighting will be fully explained Friday evening at the assembly rooms of the city hall when Engineer Sweet will give a free lecture on street lighting. In his conference with the Janesville city officials Engineer Sweet brought out many facts that were of interest to the Janesville officials, who are now considering the types of standards to be employed in Janesville's new white way.

Instead of going into the installation of the ornamental street lights is a snap-hazard way the city officials declare that there is to be extensive investigation made along scientific lines to enable the city to obtain the most efficient and yet most beautiful lights for the money to be expended. People interested in the street lighting of the city are urged to attend the meeting Friday night.

THE HEAVENS IN OCTOBER

The greatest of planets, Jupiter, dominates the sky throughout the month. His disk and four of his five moons will be seen through a good opera glass. Curious facts about the Giant Satellite of the sun.

New constellations of October. Perseus, which is the greatest of the month. Rapidly followed by Andromeda, the Charioter. The fiery Capella compared with our sun. Magnificent Pleiades near Auriga.

By C. E. Brainin of the Columbia University Observatory Staff.

Dominating the heavens on moonless nights throughout the month of October will be found the greatest of planets, Jupiter. Our map shows his place in the sky at nine o'clock on the 4th, 15th, 22nd, and 30th. His position will vary only slightly the whole month, and he should be recognized without difficulty. He shines without twinkling, and his brilliancy in stellar magnitude is about "minus two and a half," thus being far brighter than the brightest of the fixed stars. Sirius, of magnitude "minus one and a half," Jupiter is six times as brilliant as Vega, the beautiful blue-white star of the constellation Lyra, glowing a little to the west of the zenith. The most striking and fundamental difference, however, between the planet and the star comes out upon the use of a small telescope or good opera or field glass. The star changes not at all in appearance—may seem a little brighter, perhaps—but the planet now shows a definite disk. The observer of Jupiter will see not only the planetary disk itself, but also small bright spots, tiny disks themselves, which are his satellites, or moons. There are five such moons belonging to him, but one is only visible in the most powerful telescope, while the other four are easily seen with even an opera glass. The number visible to us at any one time will of course depend on the positions which the satellites may be holding in their respective orbits around their parent body at that moment.

Measurements of Jupiter. Jupiter is the largest planet of the solar system and his diameter is about 88,000 miles, a little more than eleven times that of the earth. The surface area is 122 times as great as that of the earth and the bulk is 1,325 times greater than earth's. The density of the substance making up the planet is, however, much less than their eclipses by their mother planet. One astronomer, however, noticed that these eclipses seemed always to occur a little ahead of time when the earth was moving in its orbit around the sun in such a way as to approach Jupiter and falling just a little behind the computed time when the earth was moving in such a way as to recede from the great planet. This observer, Roemer by name, suggested that this difference was due to the time taken by light to travel through the intervening space. By using the retardation time of the eclipse at the most favorable point in the earth's orbit and the distance of earth from the sun as then known, he actually computed a numerical value for the velocity of light. We better appreciate the greatness of this astronomer when we stop to consider that his discovery was made in 1676—one hundred years before the rise of the modern theory of light. Today we somewhat reverse the process: We ascertain with great accuracy the speed with which light travels by experiments in the physical laboratory and can use the time differences mentioned above to measure with precision distances which Roemer assumed known.

New Constellations of October. Perseus is now well above the eastern horizon by nine o'clock early in the month, and is rapidly followed by Andromeda, the Charioter. Very curiously, the Charioter is pictured by the ancients as seated on the Milky Way holding a little goat. The heart of the goat is the fiery Capella, a star almost as bright as Vega. The brilliant star group of the Pleiades can be seen a little to the south of Auriga. An observer must bear in mind that when looking at the Pleiades he sees a cluster of separate stars and not a mass of nebulous matter. This group has played an important part in the history of astronomy, and the reverence and attention which it has attracted are attested by the names of its importance to the ancients remain in our holidays today.

OFFICER JESS INGERSOLL RESIGNS AT LAKESIDE.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Lakeside, Wis., Sept. 29.—After four years of diligent attention to work the local police force and fire department, invested in the person of Officer Jess Ingersoll, has resigned. He intends to open a private detective agency. Every night during the past four years, Officer Ingersoll has been in uniform patrolling the streets of the village and besides these duties, he was subject to call any time during the day in case of fire, crime, delinquency from school or breaking of the quarantine laws. Not a single burglary was pulled off during his term of office.

SENDS 116 MEN TO FRONT: POPULATION FOUR THOUSAND.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Suva, Fiji Islands, Sept. 30.—Out of a population of a little over 4,000 Europeans, the British colony of Fiji has officially sent one hundred and sixteen men to the front, and another one hundred and thirty have gone independently. The total is thus two hundred and forty-six or about one sixteenth of the entire white population.

RACINE BUSINESS MEN IN AUTO BOOSTER TOUR.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Racine, Wis., Sept. 29.—Following a route that will take in most of the towns in the county, fifty automobiles carrying Racine business men started from here today on the annual booster trip. The trip has been shortened this year to allow for more time. In each of the towns visited, giving the merchants and residents an opportunity of getting acquainted with Racine's live wires.

CHANGE TO EMPIRE RULE IN CHINA IS EXPECTED SHORTLY

Chinese People Are Little Effected by Agitation to Go Back to Old System Instead of Republic.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Hankow, China, Sept. 30.—Chinese newspapers have taken the movement of the Peace Preservation society to re-establish the empire very calmly. Even here in the Yangtze-kiang valley, which was such a storm center in the two recent revolutions, there has been very little flurry caused by the report from Peking of President Yuan Shi-kai's approval of the movement for the restoration of the monarchy.

"We don't care whether we have a republic or a monarchy if it is stable," a prominent Chinese merchant remarked today. "We simply want a chance to go along without changes and upsets in business conditions. Our chief objection to the monarchy is that it will take some time to adjust to the new conditions."

This view is probably typical of that held by most of the business men of Hankow, which is called the Chinese Sun Yat-sen and China, and is the great railway center of the country. Hankow is situated at the head of navigation for ocean-going boats on the Yangtze. A railway connects Hankow and Hanyang, and another is building to Canton, and the railway is projected west from Hankow, and American interests are endeavoring to finance this line into the rich country of Tibet.

Huge Ironworks.
The Hanyang ironworks, which figured so prominently in the recent negotiations between Japan and China, are located here and employ more than 4,000 men in making steel rails and other iron products. The government also has an arsenal here. As a result of the Japanese invasion, the strategic location Hankow was a center in the two late revolutions and the native city was almost entirely destroyed.

Wuchang, which lies just across the Yangtze from Hankow, was the stronghold of General Li, the then present vice-president. In the second revolution, the city was the scene of a massive old city manifests its interest in recent political developments. The same is true of Nanking, the former capital of China three hundred years ago, and the city of Shanghai. The railway between Peking and Shanghai crosses the Yangtze-kiang at Nanking. The city is an educational center and was once a stronghold of the Sun Yat-sen revolution. The scene of the battle of Purple mountain.

Yuan Shi-kai's sunboats are stationed along the Yangtze-kiang. His troops are concentrated in the latter towns. They have been moved frequently to make sure they have not fallen under rebel influence. Consequently the administration is confident that no real danger of any consequence can develop in the valley to which nearly all of Central China is tributary.

Chinese papers published in foreign concessions are almost unanimous in declaring this is an unfortunate time for the discussion of an empire. They believe that the restoration of the empire until after the end of the European war because of the importance of foreign interests in China.

Central China, East of Hankow, which is published by Englishmen, is probably the most influential daily in the upper Yangtze-kiang valley. In a recent editorial expressed the opinion that the restoration of the monarchy will not give the rebellion in South China, as has been predicted by some leaders. The editorial says: "The great masses will be perfectly content to let a president as many, or as great, titles as he may wish for, rather than risk disturbances. They will meet again to express their congratulations to Emperor Yuan, and they will be glad when he appointed himself practically permanent president. As for the ir-reconcilables, we may take it for granted they are being closely watched and will be given no opportunity to lift up their horns. As to foreigners, it is not a matter in which they can interfere."

Change Apparent.
In reviewing recent events which presaged the return to a monarchy, the same editorial mentions President Yuan's offering sacrifices at the Temple of Heaven as the best indication of his intention to restore the old order. This was followed by governmental approval of Confucius' teachings, which hold that a state cannot exist without an emperor. The editorial next extended the presidential term to ten years and made it possible for him to make his own successor. These were natural forerunners, in the opinion of the Central China Post, of the new peace preservation society which is advocating the definite abandonment of the republic.

TUBERCULOSIS CRUSADERS MEET AT INDIANAPOLIS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Indianapolis, Sept. 29.—With nearly 1,000 delegates attending from eighteen states, the Mississippi Valley conference on tuberculosis opened a three day session here today.

The best way to prevent tuberculosis was discussed from the standpoint of the manufacturer, the large employer, the laborer, the patient, the doctor, the social worker, the editor and the state executive.

The conference was opened with short addresses by a number of Mississippi Valley governors. At noon today the delegates attended a "speechless banquet" at which Vice President Marshall presided. The delegates were then seated at a banquet. They were given an opportunity to meet James Whitcomb Riley, Meredith Nicholson and other specially invited guests.

Upon arriving in Indianapolis the delegates were confronted with a monster double-barreled cross, the symbol of the anti-tuberculosis fight. The cross is twenty-one feet high and is electrically lighted and will be the biggest one ever constructed.

Speakers from fifteen Mississippi valley states will explain in the next few days the best way to prevent tuberculosis can best be prevented. Living in the list of speakers are Dr. Condon Dunham, Cincinnati; Shirley P. Miller, of South Dakota college; Dr. Thomas A. McEwen, of Iowa; Dr. E. L. McGeehee, Hammond, La.; Dr. Theodore E. Sachs, Chicago, president of the National association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis; John Voll, President of the Ohio State Federation of Labor; William Green, secretary of the United Mine Workers; Dr. E. R. Van der Slic, superintendent of the Nebraska State Tuberculosis hospital; W. A. Miller, president of the Ohio State Medical society; Dr. Hoyt E. Dearholt, of Milwaukee and Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana State board of health.

The delegates were spurred on to greater activity by the announcement that each year 100,000 men, women and children are killed by tuberculosis and it was estimated that in the Mississippi valley are now living 500,000 people suffering from the white plague.

Local arrangements for the conference were perfected by Dr. D. Thurber, secretary of the conference.

CAN MAKE DRUGS IN WISCONSIN SHORTLY

Wisconsin may become one of the principal drug producing states of the union, according to Edward Rauber, secretary-treasurer of the Wisconsin pharmaceutical association, which conducts a drug factory on Biddle street, Milwaukee.

Through the Wisconsin Druggists' association the pharmaceutical experiment station was established at the University of Wisconsin about five years ago. Since then Wisconsin weeds have been analyzed and plants classified. Then came the war, bringing high prices on all foreign drugs—and most drugs are from foreign countries—and further interest in the experiments was aroused.

Production of Thymol.
"Thymol, one of the commonest Wisconsin weeds," Mr. Rauber says, "produces thymol, which has gone to almost prohibitive prices since the war began. The caraway plant also produces thymol, of course, neither plant has been developed. But they will be. Both are common, the thymol looking something akin to the wild pepper mint plant, and growing along fence and road sides."

"Drug raising will become a highly profitable business in the state. The smaller botanical gardens require little care and are exceedingly profitable."

"We are now cultivating belladonna in Wisconsin with profitable results. Digitalis, to which the English have been giving attention for the last century is being raised in Wisconsin, and it, too, is a profitable business."

University Will Advise.
There are several small botanical gardens around Milwaukee, and so long to have one myself next summer. The University of Wisconsin pharmaceutical experiment station, through Dr. Edward Rauber, will willingly give advice and information to any persons wishing information."

WISCONSIN LEADS
FORTY-FOUR WAYS

A Few Achievements of Badger State Which Place It in Front Rank:
Wisconsin leads the other states of the union forty-four ways. It leads in at least that many and perhaps more lines, but the Wisconsin Agriculturalist has cut the following list:

Wisconsin is the first state in dairying, ($100,000,000 a year).
Wisconsin is the leading cranberry state.
Wisconsin is the first state in the production of flax.
Wisconsin's cream industry exceeds that of any other state.
Wisconsin has more dairy cattle than any other state.
Wisconsin has the largest breeding centers of pure bred dairy stock.
Wisconsin has the greatest number of silos on its farms.
Wisconsin has the largest number of Brown Swiss dairy cows.
Wisconsin is second in number of Holstein cattle.
Wisconsin leads in the number of pure bred Guernsey cattle.
Wisconsin has 57 per cent of the cheese industry of the United States.
Wisconsin has the largest grain elevator in the world.
Wisconsin has the largest ore deposit.
Wisconsin has the largest zinc oxide plant.
Wisconsin has one of the largest steel plants in the world.
Wisconsin has the largest manufacturing crumery in the world.
Wisconsin has more available water power near large markets than any other state.

Wisconsin has the greatest and most influential agricultural college in America.
Wisconsin has 3,000,000 acres of farmland which only needs to be cleared.
Wisconsin is the leading pure bred sheep breeding state the central west.
Wisconsin has a number of the most prominent show prize winning beef cattle herds.
Wisconsin is the leader among the northern tier of states in swine production.
Wisconsin ranks eleventh as a horse breeding state.
Wisconsin's equipment from a market center standpoint is unexcelled. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis are within easy access, and such progressive cities as Fond du Lac and Madison are big consuming centers.

Wisconsin has the greatest average number of dairy cows on its farms. Statistics show that the state has an average of nine cows to the farm.

ICE FREE
ALL FALL AND WINTER
SAVES YOU MONEY BESIDES

It's true. If you are an ice user through the cold months, this offer won't interest you. You might as well stop reading right here. Only those who have never used ice in the winter can be in on this. Sounds too good to be true. But it's a fact nevertheless. Here's the how of it. We know why a good many of our customers stop using ice during the cold months. This information was secured by interviewing many of them. It's purely an economical question. Ice is an extravagance during the winter months. That's the thought in their minds. But is it? Will that statement stand analysis? Would it stand the light of ordinary investigation?

LET US SEE.
Ice is a convenience. Ice is healthful. Ice keeps foods sweet and wholesome. Ice keeps drinks cool—but not enough to freeze. Ice keeps meats from shrinking, ask the butcher. Ice keeps vegetables fresh, ask the grocer. Ice keeps fruits from freezing and spoiling, ask the fruit man. Ice keeps father in good humor, ask father. Ice keeps baby's milk just right, bless the babies. Ice bags keep away the fever, ask the doctor. Ice saves many steps down into the cellar, ask the maid. Ice saves many steps up to the kitchen, ask mother. Ice saves many colds. Ice saves coal bills. Is there anything in the above sixteen reasons that would lead you to believe that ice is an extravagance, and to stop using it an economy?

HERE'S THE ARGUMENT THAT WILL GET YOU ICE FOR NOTHING.
Foods are perishable and need a temperature of 40 degrees to keep from spoiling and above 32 to keep from freezing. Janesville weather is no respecter of the non-ice-user, but gives us a brand of weather hard to beat, from 20 degrees below to 70 degrees above, all in one week. This condition is not conducive to economical housekeeping.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER ARGUMENT THAT TELLS YOU ABOUT FREE ICE.
The left-overs—just what to do with the good food not used up—it's either the cellar, the window ice-box, or the garbage can, unless you have the convenience of conveniences, the ice-box—with some ice in it. Economical housekeeping begins with the left-overs. Household happiness depends on being able to serve, two or three days afterwards, and the same dish, dressed up a little maybe, but still the same dish—the ice box under circumstances of this kind is your ever able assistant.

ONE MORE REASON WHY YOUR ICE WILL COST YOU NOTHING.
Have you a window ice box in your house? On a cold night everything can freeze in the window ice-box. It's such a delightful sensation to find the eggs and fruit frozen and father and the babies can have toast and coffee for breakfast. And when the weather turns warm the window ice-box just loves to let all the heat possible strike your foods. You can catch cold from the window ice-box in one minute that will take you months to get over. A window ice-box is a gay deceiver—an extravagant trouble-maker, shun him as you would a pest.

NOW WE ARE COMING TO THAT SOMETHING FOR NOTHING BUSINESS.
Ah, ha! You have me—you keep your foods in the cellar—the dear old cellar. How dear to our hearts are the cellars of childhood, or something like that. Yes, the cellar is the place—not to keep foods. It's fine for coal and ashes. A good place to do the family washing. But a mighty poor ice-box. And, oh, the walking up and down. Six times each way every day, twelve trips. Eighty four trips each week. Two thousand three hundred and four trips in six months. Just think of it. By the sweat of your brow and the pain in your limbs you shall earn your daily bread? No father, the cellar is no place for your food for nine distinct reasons, any one of which would be sufficient.

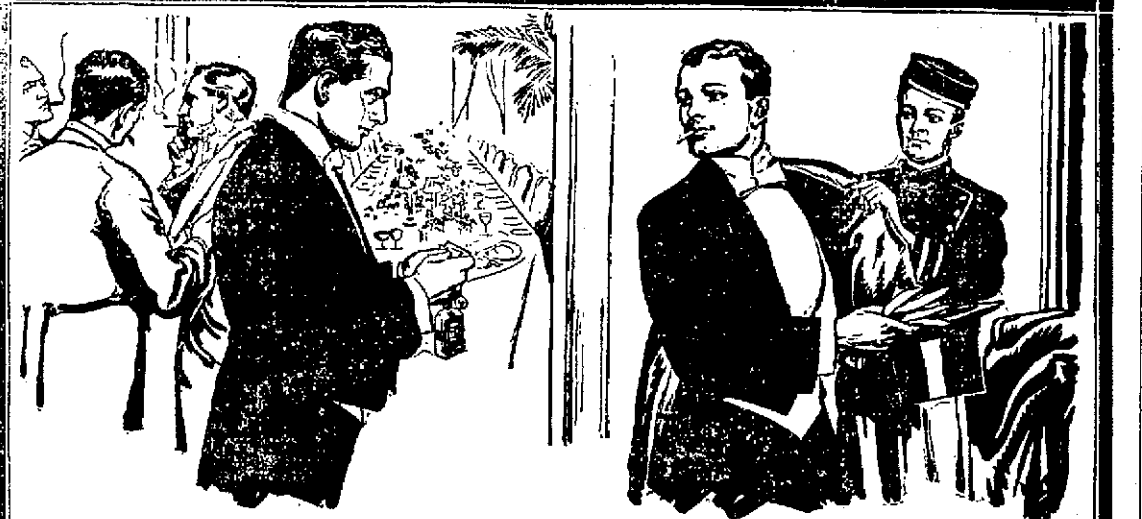

JUST LISTEN TO THIS BIT OF ICE INFORMATION.
Your great-grandfather didn't have the advantages of ice, for it's only within the past twenty or thirty years that ice has become the great economical household necessity. Deprive the city of Janesville its usual ice supply for one week during warm weather and the financial loss would run up into the thousands, but far greater than this would be the terrible suffering and great loss of life. Ice to-day is a big factor in the sick-room and hospital, is first assistant to the physician and nurse.

ONE MORE MINUTE'S PATIENCE AND WE WILL TELL YOU HOW TO GET ICE WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.
The butcher uses ice all winter—why? The grocer uses ice all winter—why? Yes, he loves the ice man, or is it because he has discovered the economy in the use of ice? Lots of our best housekeepers use ice throughout the entire year—why? Have they discovered by experience its value as a good saver? A temper saver? And a health saver? Eventually all who consider their convenience, their health and their pocketbooks will use ice through the winter regardless of weather conditions.

AND NOW FOR OUR "ICE FOR NOTHING" PROPOSITION
Use ice all winter. Use as much or as little as you need. It must save you money in the operation of your household or we will give you back every cent you have paid us. There will be no argument. Just walk into our office next spring and say: "I paid so and so for ice this winter and want my money back. I did not save money by the use of ice." And you will get every penny you paid without a single question being asked.

IS THIS A FAIR PROPOSITION?
Our method of selling coupon books gives to the ice consumer every advantage for it makes the economical use of ice possible. Each cake of 25 pounds costs you 6 1/4 cents and it's optional with you whether you take one or ten pieces per week, or one piece every two weeks. We are anxious to serve you and we will arrange any service you desire. We want you to try using ice this winter. You will be glad, so will we.

REMEMBER IT'S GOING TO SAVE YOU MONEY OR NO PAY.
Our company is responsible and we know just what chances we are taking in making this offer to you. You have absolutely nothing to lose and everything to gain.

A DECIDED INSULT.

The old biblical saying, "Turn the other cheek," has been aptly illustrated in the Dumba incident, which while closed now, has created considerable comment in diplomatic circles in Washington. There is no question of a doubt but that Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian representative in this country, openly insulted the president of the United States. It created amazement among foreign diplomats at Washington and caused among well informed Americans, because President Wilson did not hand his passports to Dr. Dumba without waiting for his official recall by his own government. When it became known that Dr. Dumba's recall had been requested, that official had the temerity to issue a public letter to the secretary of state which amounted to an appeal to the people against the administration which had recalled him. It was a flagrant violation of diplomatic etiquette. Foreign ambassadors and ministers accredited to Washington are here virtually as guests of this nation. They enjoy immunity from taxes and from arrest and other privileges which could be accorded them only as guests, and they are under obligations to treat the government to which they are accredited with the utmost consideration and respect. Dr. Dumba's offense was tantamount to the action of a man who, as a guest in another's house, appealed to his host's children against their father. And now comes the text of the letter which Dr. Dumba sent home in which he refers to President Wilson as "self-willed" and as an "intransigent."

When the Spanish Minister, Du Puy de Lome, referred to President McKinley, in a private letter, as a "porcupine politician," he was promptly handed his passports, and when Lord Sackville West, the British minister, advised a friend in a private letter to vote the republican ticket as better for the interests of the United States than the democratic doctrine of tariff for revenue only, President Cleveland sent him his passports without a moment's hesitation. Patriotic Americans, therefore, fear that the supineness with which this administration is permitting Dr. Dumba to remain in this country, after his seriously improper conduct, will only add to that contempt in which the United States is already held in European capitals. There is no reason to believe that such an exhibition of self-respect on the part of the administration would strain the relations between Austria and the United States. In fact, reports from Vienna indicate that the Austrian government does not itself approve of Dumba's conduct.

BE A BOOSTER.

Be a booster and help this Y. M. C. A. crusade along. Do not hesitate to sign your name to the membership roll. It will help you personally and help the city materially. There is nothing that is so good for any community as a Y. M. C. A., run on broad lines with a sign of welcome for every stranger who comes within our gates. The men behind the present campaign represent our citizens, so aid in the good work by your own individual efforts. Aside from the moral support given by your subscription, they want your personal support by attendance. It is a good cause and so your share and do it with a will that betokens interest in your home community. Few cities in the state have a finer Y. M. C. A. building than Janesville. Make this city the banner one for membership as well. Be a booster.

THE STATE FAIR.

It is cruel to criticize the present board which handled the last state fair, but still the fact remains that if they are not criticized they may make the same mistakes again next year they did this. First and foremost is the complaint from the residents of the rural districts that the signs declared every thing free, except the admission. True, the average fairgoer expected to pay for his seat in the grandstand and for the side-shows, and so forth, but he did not expect to pay for going into the hall erected for the exhibition of machinery by the state at a large expense which was turned over to an automobile exhibit. The machinery itself was housed in tents or sheds outside. The state has appropriated a large sum of money for the improvement of the grounds. It has re-organized the board of agriculture and placed at its head a man who has state-wide reputation, yes national reputation, for agricultural affairs. It is evident that he means to bring back the Wisconsin state fair to the farmers not to turn it over to the politicians. It is the duty of the citizens to give him their support until he demonstrates his ideas. However, he must be careful of his subordinates and select men to run important positions that are capable of handling the affairs at hand. Upon them depends much of the success of the nineteenth sixteen fair. Mistakes will happen. Politics will creep into fairs, even, but it is necessary to remain neutral even though it is painful, and gain the support of the press of the state. If the coming fair is to be a success, it does not depend upon Milwaukee newspapers to make it a success, but upon the press of the state as a whole. Really when you come down to it Milwaukee is merely the tail of the dog and it should not wag the dog.

THE DANGERS TO COME.

Former Governor Hoard in his Jefferson County Union, sounds a slogan of warning to the auto owners of the state who despoil country roads by fast driving when he writes:

"In all this talk about the farmers being more enterprising than they are in creating good roads and in being willing to be taxed heavily to pay for them there is a false note running through the whole clatter. The automobile owners are first and foremost in the clamor on this matter, while it is undeniably true that the most destructive agency we have to the hard surface road is the speed lunatic who drives an automobile. When at the wheel this fool has no care nor conscience as to the damage he is doing to the roads; then he howls loudly for the farmer to come forward and pay for the destruction he is continually making.

"The better and smoother the road is made the faster does this lunatic drive over them throwing the costly surface out in a cloud of dust to the roadside fields. That is the real answer the farmers get for putting their hands in their pockets and paying for good roads.

"The best macadam roads are badly damaged in two years' time by this fast automobile driving. Do you ever hear a peep out of the automobile associations in protest to their members for the damage they are doing? Not a bit of it. They keep up the agitation for better roads in the newspapers and in the legislature, but not a man jack of them is willing to reduce his speed to fifteen miles an hour in order to lessen the destructive wear of the machine on the road surface. The fact is becoming apparent that legislation must be turned against the automobile owners in order to stop the destruction they are causing to these expensive roads. A law that would prevent an automobile from being sold or run in the state, that could make over fifteen miles an hour would save millions of dollars annually in the expense of establishing and maintaining good roads. And we want to say to the automobile fraternity that if they do not stop their wild and dangerous practice of driving from twenty to forty miles an hour over country roads they will soon hear from the farmers in a way that they will remember. The farmers are not mutton headed fools nor are they blind to the destruction to their roads that these speed maniacs are responsible for. The fact that farmers own automobiles will not hinder the mighty protest that will soon go up to the law-making power to correct this glaring injustice. They are not going to sit patient and keep building up expensive roads for the autoists to destroy without making their influence felt in the legislature. Stop this fast auto driving and you will stop the principal cause for the short life of our best roads."

City editors of various parts of the country are organizing into associations for the exchange of ideas. If properly carried out it is a good thing, but if abused it would be a menace to the profession they claim to represent. Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois have been the pioneers in the movement and Massachusetts, Kansas and Arizona are shortly to form similar associations.

Scarcely a day passes that the public is not informed that attempts have been made to dynamite some trans-Atlantic steamship carrying men and women back to their homes. Many are called by the land of their birth to take up arms in the cause they are fighting for and others by business. It is a poor plan to dynamite such ships for the moral effect it has upon the world at large.

The anti-administration press makes strenuous comment upon the fact that Governor Philipp is devoting much time to visiting the various county agricultural fairs. They fail to realize that when our senior senator was governor there were weeks, yes even months at a time, that the governor never saw the capitol building for campaigning and other reasons. It was all right then, but now—Holy horrors!—can it be possible that a governor should neglect his official duties for a minute? What a difference it makes who is governor?

It is intimated that La Follette being unable to find anything that he can really find fault with in the administration of Gov. Philipp, fearing to tackle the defense of the Seaman's bill that is so universally condemned, is about to resume his old fight on the railroads. Too bad, but what can you expect when such reformers as La Follette have put some of the biggest railroad corporations in the country in the hands of a receiver during the past few years.

This question of the foreign loan is taking a purely commercial status despite the fact that many pro-German banks have declared they will not subscribe to it. Of course not. No one expected they would, but if the bond issue is floated it means that even the German subscribers to the banks will receive cash for their farm products which they might otherwise not have done. This playing two countries under one flag is getting tiresome.

A Milwaukee paper recently stated that only Molluscoides could aspire to athletic honors in Janesville. Never mind boys, Milwaukee has nothing to boast of and if they choose to call us Molluscoides, turn round and show them that you can beat any record that they can boast of with their various high schools with trained athletic coaches. Janesville has won more than one state championship before this.

Now is the time the oyster comes into his own. Cold weather makes him popular even though he has been enjoyed by those who know his habits even during the months without an "R" in their name.

Spain and Norway must have shaken hands with each other over the fact their neutrality was so securely anchored. However, in the best of harbors sometimes an anchor slips a cable or so.

The European spies that are seeking to investigate the United States military forces, must have had their eyes seriously strained since they arrived this side of the Atlantic.

Have you become a Y. M. C. A. member yet? If not, watch out, they want you! Join the list of boosters.

MONROE HAS TROUBLE WITH CITY WATER SUPPLY. DISEASE BREAKING OUT

Monroe, Wis., Sept. 30.—Monroe was without water power or fire protection last evening. The city water was shut off recently in order to clean out all the city mains. An epidemic of dysentery has broken out within the last few days and seems to be on the increase as a result. One physician has fifteen cases under his attention at the present time, while there is not a doctor in the city but has from one to several. It is believed that the trouble is caused by the city water, due to impurities which were carried into the city supply by the recent heavy rains.

"After All Those Years." The size of a dollar depends entirely upon how many more you have.

"Peleg Boondoles, the millionaire vegetarian, drew his $700 meuble-fur overcoat closer about him as the ragged, shivering stranger approached. "Sir, can you spare me a penny?" gasped the beggar. "Not a bite has passed these teeth for nineteen days, and I'm beginning to feel hungry. Just a penny!" cried Boondoles. "Hard, my long-lost brother!"

"Oh, how pitiful!" went on the millionaire, drawing his fur overcoat still closer. "Harold, this touches me to the heart. To think that after all these years I should meet you starving with no necktie and only one shoe!"

"And to think that my first words to you should be a request for a penny!" moaned Harold, as the tears dropped from his eyes.

"And to think," said his rich brother, as his own eyes filled. "To think that I have nothing smaller than a dime!"

And he passed on, broken-hearted.

SNAP SHOTS

You think you are tolerably busy. How would you like to be the woman who cooks batter-cakes for a husband and six children?

You can save a lot of argument by admitting that the whale swallowed Jonah. And the matter is one of the least important of public controversies.

There are all kinds of people, some of whom hold that the question as to whether chipmunks hibernate is important.

After an elderly man has apprised you of the state of his health, as practically has exhausted the subjects for discussion in which he personally is interested.

Formerly when a woman wanted to show her love for a man she knitted a crocheted tie and gave it to him for a Christmas present. Nowadays she buys a revolver and shoots him full of holes.

If you want it done, don't send a committee. Go yourself.

In a woman good sense and freckles go hand in hand. And a woman who whistles is apt to be pretty capable in other respects.

When a man claim to be as good

A girl of the slums brought before a hard, inexorable judge on the charge of manslaughter; all the available evidence in the case pointing to her guilt, with no loop-hole, not even a technicality, for escape; then a sudden turn when the old attorney from the country town arrives, bringing with him a photograph of the girl's mother, and a letter brown with age; an athen palor striking the hot face of the judge, a sudden seizure in his throat, and the dawn of a new life for the poor girl and her faithful sweetheart.

Mae Marsh, trained by D. W. Griffith to consummate skill in photoplay, interprets the part of the girl to perfection, and, supported by the other fully competent members of the cast, present the story to you with the vividness of reality.

The name is "The Outcast." It was written by a famous author, Thomas Nelson Page; and it is tomorrow's Masterpicture. See it.

of Janesville, Wis.

announces the opening of the season's concerts and recitals—Five in Number.

The opening number will be

FRANCES INGRAM

Prima Donna Contralto of the Chicago and Montreal Opera Company.

ARTHUR FRAM

Pianist.

No contralto in recent years has made such phenomenal success as has Frances Ingram, nor has any contralto, in recent memory, risen so quickly to a place of prominence. Miss Ingram made her first success with the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company during the season 1912-13. The following season she scored a complete success as one of the principal contraltos of the Montreal Opera Company. Now for the season 1915-1916 she is re-engaged for important roles with the Chicago Opera Company, although a part of the season will be devoted to concert, in which field Miss Ingram has become deservedly popular.

Gifted with one of the most beautiful contralto voices extant, and with a personality at once charming and magnetic, it is easy to understand why Miss Ingram has made for herself so quickly a firm place in the affections of American music-lovers.

Congregational Church, Oct. 8, 8 P. M.

BABE SEES LIGHT

ON SPEEDING TRAIN

Early Morning Limited Held Here Thirty Minutes While Operation Is Performed.

Although the orthodox stork is everywhere regarded as a bird of nature built for speed, and the young generation as the means of locomotion by which they were deposited on the earth, the parents of the baby, nevertheless, this morning the creature of fable immortal did himself one better and permitted a twentieth century steel contraption to assume the responsibility of bringing a little baby to the Bower City.

The stork came and so did an early morning Chicago and Northwestern passenger train, Chicago bound from Minneapolis. The child was born on the train here to a Chicago woman. Some say she was an Italian, while others say the version that she was the wife of a Chicago millionaire. The first seems most logical.

When the light of matters was made known that birth was imminent, the big steel train was held here for thirty minutes by railroad officials. Following the operation by Dr. W. H. Palmer, the railway's surgeon, and his partner, Dr. W. H. McGuire, the mother and child were removed from the train to the Mercy hospital.

Both doctors are reticent regarding the incident. When called on the telephone Dr. McGuire stated that the matter was a railroad case and referred to Dr. Palmer as a source of information. Dr. Palmer, on the other hand, announced that he had no statement to make.

Mother and child are reported to be doing nicely by hospital authorities.

OVERCOAT IS TAKEN

FROM FARMER'S RIG

Frank, Inman's Buggy Visited By Sneak Thief at Corn Exchange Last Evening.

Police are searching for a sneak thief who stole an overcoat, pair of gloves and a high light from the buggy of Frank Inman last evening at the Corn Exchange. The same man, it is said, also tried to steal two coats from the automobile of George Lempe, but was interrupted by a woman residing in a flat above the street, and he threw the two robes into a stairway.

Police obtained a good description of the man but were unable to find him after making an extensive search round the city. There will be a great number of these thefts committed this morning, the man without work will need an overcoat for the cold weather, and when he sees one in plain sight he is going to make an attempt to get it, said Captain Thomas Morrison this morning.

"Good care should be taken of valuables not to leave them in rigs," reports of a robbery in a grocery store in the residential district caused a patrolman to be sent to the store this morning. It developed that one of the young men connected with the store thought it would be a good idea to "joke" his brother by placing a patrolman in the store. The owner, to make it appear as if the store had been visited by thieves. So he turned supplies top-sy-turvy. When the patrolman learned the truth of the robbery the young man was subjected to a "rare bawling out," as the officer expressed it.

LENORE ULRICH A

CHARMING ACTRESS

"Kilmeny" Proves To Be A Very Refreshing and Enjoyable Picture.

A thoroughly enjoyable and refreshing picture, "Kilmeny," which was presented at the Apollo yesterday, in it the producers attained a distinction worthy of much praise.

Lenore Ulrich, the Morosco comic opera star was naturally fascinating in the title role. Miss Ulrich is delightful, pretty, poised, free and will make a woman who is wanted through the film, does funny things with the artlessness of a child that relieves them from all blame, and is altogether a bewitching person. It was a charming picture, thoroughly to be enjoyed.

Additions to the Apollo orchestra have greatly improved the music so that their offerings are no small part of a good evening's entertainment.

RELATIVES OF GIRL

REFUSE TO COMPLAIN

Private Settlement of Case May Result in Release of Young Menzies From Police Station Jail.

Because of the refusal of the parents of Miss Clara Ryder to make a complaint or aid in the prosecution, it is probable that David Menzies, the last of three boys held for the last three days at the city police station, will be released this evening.

District Attorney Dunwiddie stated this afternoon that his investigation showed that some form of an assault may have been made but that it was not certain if the more serious crime has been committed as was at first alleged, when the youth was arrested, on Monday.

The authorities who have investigated the case state that the Ryder girl is subnormal mentally and cannot give a true connected account of the case. The father, Mr. J. H. Ryder, committed by Menzies when he took her to Beloit in his automobile, where she left him, refusing to ride back to the city. The father appears to be a member of the family. He negotiated through their attorneys to reach a settlement of the case and have released the youth.

The youth, with this attitude, confronting him, District Attorney Dunwiddie said that it would be doubtful if Menzies is legally arrested. The two accounts of the assaults differ greatly given by the two principals, making it extremely hard for the authorities to learn if the allegations would be borne out of Menzies was arraigned in court.

Menzies was still confined to his cell at the city hall police station this afternoon at a late hour.

FATHER SUING SON

OVER ALLEGED NOTE

Claims Eight Hundred Dollars Damage Due From Note, and Son Claims $160 Taken by Father.

An adjournment was taken this morning in the civil action case of Maurice Reed against his father, F. Reed, father against son, in the municipal court, with the consent of the attorneys, G. G. Sutherland for the plaintiff and Fred C. Burpee for the defendant. The father, Maurice Reed, has filed a complaint against his son, alleging that in October, 1914, his son executed a promissory note to the amount of eight hundred dollars to be paid in six months' time. Judgment was demanded for this amount and the court costs.

In the response to the complaint filed by Attorney Burpee, the son, Thomas Reed, who resides in the city, alleged that he never made or delivered the eight hundred dollar note, and claims the signature is a forgery. In a counter claim the father swears claims that the father converted to his own use four head of cattle valued at $160, which were the property of the son. Judgment is demanded in this amount by the son from the father.

Ervin Graft obtained an adjournment in his civil action suit against John Graft for the collection of wages in the municipal court. The son, Thomas Reed, who resides in the city, alleged that he never made or delivered the eight hundred dollar note, and claims the signature is a forgery. TOQUE OF CRETONNE sugar and one quart vinegar, which have boiled fifteen minutes. Fine for salads, sauces, with vegetables or meat when a piquant flavor is desired.

An out of the ordinary millinery creation in a season when velvet and hatter's plush predominate, is this close fitting toque. The material used is a cretonne; this is sewn on the close fitting frame which is shaped to form a cone on the left side, and draped on the right where it is knotted and left to hang loosely. A band of dyed rayon is the only trimming.

Carrot Marmalade—Grind 3½ pounds carrots, add enough water to moisten pulp, cook in double boiler until tender. Cook two chopped lemons in double boiler. When tender mix with carrots, measure and add equal amount of sugar. Boil until thick.

When Canning Any Kind of Fruit—Do not wipe the juice of the can till after the rubber and lid are put on, then turn can upside down and let stand over night. The juice will keep all around the lid and will seal the can tight. It is done very little of the fruit will spoil.

THE TABLE—Mix together one quart sifted flour, three teaspoons baking powder, half cup butter and half teaspoon salt; stir and beat yolks of two eggs and milk to make a soft dough. Bake in a high pan. When done split with a hot knife, spread with butter and lay on pared pitted peaches. Dust with pulverized sugar, place the other crust on top, spread with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with lemon and vanilla. Lay on pared fruit on top. Dust with sugar and serve.

Peach Pudding—Peel ripe peaches and place in dish. Cover with two cups of water. Cover and bake until tender. Drain juice and set same to cool. Now add to juice one cup whole wheat flour, tablespoon melted butter, cup of granulated sugar and small quantity salt. Mix all and beat with an egg. Pour same over peaches in dish, and bake until pudding has become a rich brown. Serve with cream.

Each Biscuit—Sift together a quart of dry flour and three heaping teaspoons baking powder. Add one egg, thoroughly a piece of butter the size of an egg, add two well beaten eggs, a tablespoon of sugar, a teaspoon of salt. Mix all together quickly into a soft dough with one cup of milk (more if needed). Roll out nearly half an inch thick. Cut into biscuits and bake in quick oven from fifteen to twenty minutes.

Cauliflower Salad—Cook cauliflower as usual in salted water; drain and cool; serve the flowerets on lettuce with mayonnaise. Decorate with sliced pickles.

Ice Cream—Melt a lump of butter size of an egg, add a cup of confectionery sugar and half cup nut meats. Rich and delicious. Nuts may be omitted.

French Fried Potatoes—Peel and cut into "fingers" and sprinkle with salt and pepper; dip in beaten eggs and fine bread crumbs; sprinkle with salt and fry in hot fat until brown. Serve with tomato sauce and real chops.

MAKE GOOD WALL PAPER FROM WASTE BARK WOOD AT STATE UNIVERSITY
Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—The manufacture of wall paper out of waste bark of trees has been successfully worked out by the federal forest product laboratories here. Heretofore this bark, which has been of no use for fuel, has been thrown into the rivers, but later when this was prohibited it has accumulated around the mills. A quantity of spruce bark recently sent here has been ground and manufactured into wall paper which closely resembles the oatmeal pattern used for wall coverings.

A valuable property of this paper is that it requires very little dye to produce the proper tints. This is especially valuable at the present time when dyes are almost impossible to obtain.

ENORMOUS MACKEREL HAULS EXPERIENCED IN GERMANY.
Berlin, Sept. 30.—Such schools of mackerel as have not been seen in German waters for many years are now visiting the seascoasts in both the North Sea and the Baltic, and the fishermen are making enormous catches. The fish are entering the Baltic through the cattegat in great shoals, and the Danes are also taking their part in the catch. The German fishermen are taking enormous hauls in the waters around Kiel, Eckernförde, and Rostock, and many shiploads of fish are being taken from Denmark and Norway for packing the fish for shipment into the interior.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. E. M. LEONARD

"Is this you, Olive?" asked Nell over the phone.

"Yes, what's up?" came back over the wire. Nell's voice had sounded shaky.

"Oh! send the doctor quick. Hal pulled a cup of scalding tea over the table and his arm is dreadfully burned. Not there, oh, what shall I do? Can't you come over? Oh, thank you. Do hurry, dear."

When Olive came into the room the poor baby was screaming at the top of his lungs and Nell, who had managed to get the clothing off of his arm, was holding him in perfect despair.

"Oh, dear, I'm so glad you have come," she gasped. "He's suffering dreadfully and I've no idea what to do."

"Have you any linseed oil and lime-water?" asked Olive, starting for the medicine chest.

"No, I've nothing for a burn. I never had a burn in my life," Nell wiped her eyes.

"I was afraid you would not have it," few people do. So I telephoned to the drug store before I left home and gave them a hurry up order. The boy will be here in ten minutes at the latest, for he will come on his wheel and I walked over."

"Should I telephone for Dick?" faltered Nell.

"No, I would not; he will not know what to do and I am sure I can manage it all right," Nell said to herself, telling him where it was and what had happened. He will come right over as soon as he reads it, of course.

"Do you see anything of the boy?" asked Nell anxiously. Olive was looking down the street.

"Yes, here he comes. I'll get the dish and the absorbent cotton ready. I watched them do our maid's arm when she was scalded one time, so I know just what to do."

She looked at the cotton in the oil and soon the screaming child was quieted and dropped off to sleep exhausted.

"Now tell me how it happened," said Olive as Nell came out and closed the bedroom door.

Nell dropped into a chair and wiped her hot face. "I was not a bit hungry this morning and the baby was getting sick. I often can't remember whether I have had any breakfast or not in the hurry and confusion of getting things started."

"About ten o'clock I was faint and made myself a cup of tea. Hal was toddling around but I never thought of any danger to him when I was called out of the room. I heard a crash and a scream. Running in I found the cloth pulled nearly off the table and under it on the floor with the baby screaming at the top of his lungs. Even then I did not think of a burn. I thought he was frightened by the crash. When I found his sleeve soaked with the scalding tea, I can tell you, I did not call you up! I had taken the wet sleeve off the poor little arm. It had begun to blister then. I knew it was serious and I called you."

"Whatever will Dick say? I must call him up and tell him before he starts home. He would never forgive me if I didn't," Nell looked too faint to move.

"You haven't had a bit of breakfast. Then all this excitement. You lie down and I'll make you a cup of tea and after that it will be time enough to call Mr. Dick."

"I need watches; need some one to take care of you as much as the baby," Olive led her up to the lounge and covered her up before she left the room.

After the tea was swallowed, Olive called up Dick and told him of the accident. "Nell is all upset," she added, after his fears for the baby had been allayed. "Be sure not to say anything to unnerve her any more, she can't stand it."

"Why should I?" he asked in wonder. "Poor little girl!"

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-four years old and I was with a very nice young man about my own age for over a year. I was deeply in love with him and I was not happy out of his sight. He seemed that way toward me and came to see me every Sunday night and some times through the week. He would always take me where ever I wanted to go. He never went with any one but me while he was going with me.

One Sunday night when he took me to church he was very sulky, something unusual for him as he was always jolly. When we got home he told me he wanted to come back any more. I thought he was joking and so I didn't pay any attention to what he said. He bade me goodbye in good humor and he hasn't come back yet.

We go to the same church and Sunday school and it always breaks my heart to see him with another girl. I don't write him since he told me that he did not dislike me and that it made him feel blue when he met me and I would not speak to him. He wanted to call sometime. I have not written him since he told me that I was not angry with him and told him to call any time. He did not answer and hasn't come to see me. I don't think by writing him that you think he still loves me and will he ever come back? What can I do to win him back as I love him more than anyone else?

BLIND HEARTED GIRL.
I get the impression from your letter that the man liked you very much, but not caring enough for you to marry you, stopped calling. Then things got so bad that he cared and hurt by your indifference, he decided that it would be safe to renew friendship. Although your friendly letter was all right, it gave him no reason to believe that he still meant a great deal to you. Friendly recognition when you meet again would have been enough and would have revealed how much you care for him.

In the future I would speak, if I were you, and be friendly, but at the same time I would appear to be making an exceptionally good time with some one else, indifference to your part is the only thing that will bring him back. And if he asks to come, your game is not over—it is only half begun. Don't let him come when he first asks; make something else to do. If you succeed in making him a frequent caller again, even then you will have to be indifferent. You cannot keep him. Never again let him know that you care for him unless he begs to marry you, and begs hard.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am twenty-three years old, married and have one child. I married at twenty, a man to whom my parents objected. Because they didn't like his father. But I loved him and he was very happy. Do you think I did right and that parents were just in disliking my husband for such a reason?

(2) Is shampoo good for the hair?

(3) Does dancing, swimming, playing tennis, etc., make one slim with a good figure?

(4) Your parents were justified in opposing the marriage when they thought your happiness was in balance. A girl of twenty is rather young to be sure of what she wants. Fortunately you were right in your decision.

(5) The shampoo you mention makes the hair light and fluffy, but it causes it to fall out.

(6) Athletics help to make the figure beautiful, developing the development is needed and reducing where there is superfluous flesh.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is four times a week too often to go with a boy?

(2) What color goes best with red hair? DIMPLES.

(3) It is too often unless you are engaged.

(4) Brown.

NEEDS OF CHURCHES IN RURAL DISTRICT

With Pastors Trained in Rural Leadership, Country People Will Respond More.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—When the religious denominations of this country furnish their rural parishes with pastors who have been trained for rural leadership, the farmers will respond by building for them and with them churches of influence and purpose.

This is the keynote of a report just made by the committee on rural communities to the national social service commission. C. J. Galpin, secretary of the Wisconsin Country Life association, is the chairman of this committee. The committee was authorized more than a year ago to make a study of types of successful rural churches in the United States. The investigation was carried on over a period of four months and out of this survey came the following definite suggestions:

That an order of American volunteers be established. That summer schools of religion for country pastors be started; that country seminaries be opened; that a board of strategy on parish development be chosen.

In recent years the country school has been undergoing a steady evolution, changing from the little one-teacher box school house to one adapted to the needs of its community and in many instances to the larger consolidated school, graded and supplied with several teachers with special qualifications. Similarly the preachers of the future, according to this report, must not only be well trained, but in order to command thorough respect must be conversant with advanced country life problems.

The country pastor must exhibit an intelligent constructive method in his work," says the report. He must not only put in full time as a workman now is expected to work, but the owl of efficient method must sit on his spade.

The report criticizes the theological seminaries of the last generation because of their eagerness to place their men in city pastorates. The outcome has been that the country field has been disparaged more or less, neglected in specialized training and silently left out of account.

The new farmer who is depending upon agricultural county agents for farm advice and who is using agricultural schools for his boys and girls, agricultural colleges for his young men, wants and needs a country theological seminary for his pastors," declares the report.

Rich Women to Pay ONE-THIRD IN TAXES

Those Who Left U. S. Because of High Taxes Now Meet Heavier Burdens in Britain.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Sept. 30.—Expatriated Americans who left their country for England on account of democracy's "confiscatory tendencies" are wondering whether, by any chance, they could have made a mistake. The new British income tax takes just one-third of the income of the wealthy.

Well-informed Americans, in discussing the extent to which the pockets of these Anglo-Americans would be affected, estimate that William Astor, who has to pay approximately $125,000 annually, according to the new rate.

Other estimates by them are Mrs. William B. Leeds, $300,000; the Duchess of Roxburghe, $170,000; Lady Granard, $100,000; Mrs. Beatty, wife of Admiral Beatty, formerly Miss Edith Field, daughter of the late Marquis Field, $200,000; Paris Singer, $100,000; Lady Waldstein, formerly Mrs. Seligman, $60,000; the Duchess of Marlborough, $25,000; Mrs. John Astor, $30,000; Mrs. Bingham, formerly Mrs. Alice Channing, between $40,000 and $50,000, and her sister, Lady Newborough, about the same, and Lady Cunard, $25,000.

The increase in the tax also will make a big hole in the pockets of a large number of American residents in the British Isles, for it is estimated that between 15,000 and 25,000 now are living here.

"GO-TO-CHURCH" MOVE AT STATE UNIVERSITY
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—A general campaign has been started at the University of Wisconsin to encourage church attendance upon the part of students. This movement is wholly non-denominational in character and every student is urged to attend the church with which he has been previously affiliated. A faculty committee consisting of E. H. Gardner of the department of English; R. S. Butler of the college of commerce and A. W. Hopkins of the college of agriculture is directing the campaign. Pastors and priests of very many of the local churches are already co-operating in the movement. Billboards and newspaper space are being effectively employed in this advertising project. It is believed the largest attendance ever was secured last week.

The Battle-Cry

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"The Call of the Cumberlands"

When they rose from the table the stranger drew Fitch, now somewhat sobered by his meal, aside, and the other men retired to the chairs in the doorway. Then the girl from the East slipped away and took up her solitary place on top of the stile, where she sat thinking.

At last she was conscious of a presence besides her own, as of someone standing silently at her back.

Rather nervously she turned her head, and there, with one foot on the lower step of the stile, stood the young stranger himself. Once more their eyes met, and with a little start she dropped her own.

"I don't hate to bother ya, ma'am," said the other voice, "but I can't hardly keep my eyes off you while you're settin' on that stile."

"There was no note of badinage or levity in his tone, and his clear, drawn features under the moonlight were entirely serious.

"I beg your pardon," she said hastily, as she went down the stile on the far side.

"That's all right, ma'am," replied the man easily, still with a serious dignity as he, too, crossed the road.

While he was untying the knot in his bridle-rein the girl stood watching him. In the easy indolence of his movements was the rippling something that suggested the leopard's frictionless strength.

The very quality that gave this young stranger his picturesqueness and stamped him as vital and dynamic in his manhood sprang from that wild roughness which he shared with his coarser and Dawn shared with her weedlike flowers. And yet it was somehow as though this man, whose voice was so calm, whose movements were so quiet, whose gaze was so un-arrogant, was crying out in a clarion challenge with every breath: "I am a man!"

Suddenly she wondered if in him she might not find an ally. She felt very lonely. To have counsel with someone in these little less stupidly phlegmatic than Good Anse Talbot would bring comfort and reassurance to her heart. She must cope with the powerful resourcefulness of Bad Anse Haver, he of the untamed ferocity and implacable cruelty and shrewd intelligence. If some native son could share even a little of her viewpoint she would find in him a tower of strength.

Perhaps he had yielded to the unspoken appeal of the deep, rangy eyes that were always gray, yet never twice the same gray, and the sweetly sensitive lips so tantalizingly charming, because they were fashioned for smiles and were now drooping instead.

"I reckon," he said, "you find it right different, don't you?"

She nodded.

"But it's very beautiful," she added as she swept her hand about in a gesture of admiration.

It was he who nodded at that, very gravely, and almost reverently, though at the next moment his laugh was short and almost ironical.

"I reckon God never fashioned anything better—nor worse," he told her. "When you've breathed it an' seen it an' lived it, no other place is fit to dwell in, an' yet sometimes I 'low that God didn't mean it to be the habitation of men an' women. It's cut out for eagles an' hawks an' wild things. It belongs to the winds an' storms an' bear an' deer. It puts fire into veins meant for blood, an' the only crop it raises much is hell."

"You—you've been out in the other world—down below?" she questioned.

"Yes; but I couldn't stay down there. I couldn't breathe, hardly. I sickened—an' I came back."

She turned to him impulsively.

"I don't know who you are," she began hurriedly, "but I know that you brought this man home when he was not in a condition to come alone. I know that you sent a man ahead of you to keep peace at the dance. It means something—means a great deal—to feel that someone in these hills feels about it as I feel."

She stopped suddenly, realizing that she was allowing too much appeal to creep into her voice; that she had come to fight, not to sue for favor. "I—I thought maybe you would help me," she finished, a little falteringly. "Would you mind telling me your name?"

He had unhitched his horse and stood with the reins hanging from one hand.

"It's Haver," he said slowly, "but hereabouts I've got another name that's better known." He paused, then added with a hardened timbre of voice, as though bent on making defiant what would otherwise sound like confession: "It's Bad Anse."

The girl recoiled, as though under a physical shock. It seemed to her that every way she turned she was to meet staggering disappointments. She had spoken almost pleadingly to the man with whom she could make no terms—the man whose arrogant power and lawless influence she must break and paralyze before her own regime could find standing-room in these hills.

Yet, as she looked at him standing there, and stiffened resolutely, she could say nothing except "Oh!"

Into the monosyllabic crept many things: repulsion, defiance and chagrin for her mistake, and in recognition of them all the bronzed features of the man hardened a little and into the cool eyes snapped a sparkle of the sleeping fires she had divined.

"I made my suggestion to the wrong man," she said steadily. "I misunderstood you. I thought you said you wanted peace."

He swung himself to the saddle again; then, as he gathered up his reins, he turned, and in his utterance was immovable steadiness and glacial coldness, together with a ring of contempt and restrained anger.

"I did say that, and by God Almighty, I meant just what I said. I do want peace in these mountains—but I ain't never found no way yet to get peace without fightin' for it."

She saw him ride away into the moonlight, with his shoulders very straight and the battered felt hat very high, and she looked neither to right nor left as he went until the mists had swallowed him.

For a long time while she sat there on the stile gazing across the steep banks between which the waters of Tribulation slipped along in a tide of tarnished quicksilver and beyond which rose the near ridges of blue and the far, dim ridges of gray.

At her back she knew that the family and the missionary were sitting in talk.

She sat there with her hands clasped about her updrawn knees as she used to sit when some childhood grief had weighed upon her.

She could not shake out of her mind the humiliation of having shown her weakest side to Bad Anse Haver. It was some satisfaction to remember the offended stiffening of his shoulders and the smoldering fire in his eyes. She had heard much of the strong, easily hurt pride of these mountain men—a pride which made them walk in strange surroundings with upright heads and eyes, challenging criticism of their uncouthness. She had first appealed to this man, but at least she had also stung him with her scorn. Now they would be open enemies.

"You Haven't Even a Letter of Introduction."

She knew that this young man, in a country where every man was poor and no man a pauper, owned great tracts of land that yielded only sparse crops with the most arduous coaxing. She knew that under his rocky acres slept a great wealth of coal, and that above them grew noble and virginal forests of hardwood. The coming of railroads and development would make him a rich man. Yet he stood there, seemingly prizing above all those magnificent certainties the empty boast of feudal chieftainship. Yet he was a man. With that thought came an unwelcome comparison. She thought of someone whom she had loved—and sent away—and of their leave-taking. That man had had every gentle attribute which this man lacked. All that universities, travel and ancestry can give had shown out in his bearing, his manners, his voice and the expression of his eyes.

There had been a time when she had wavered in her determination to devote herself to the mission for which she had been educated. She thought that this man might be more important than any mission; that a life with him might be full enough. Then had come the discovery, which at first she had rebelliously denied, but which forced itself hatefully upon her realization. Despite his unchallengeable charm and gentility, he was, after all, not quite a man. When she had admitted that beyond dispute, she had turned, sickened, from the life which she could not contemplate without him. The man whom she thought she loved was "empty and fine, like a swordless sheath." Very well, she would turn to the work of putting an edge on the sturdier metal of raw humanity.

Her grandfather's fortune, or fortunes, since the plural rather than the singular fitted their dimensions, had come to her with his wish that part of them should go to advance education in the Alleghenies. She was to be his stewardess in overseeing the work, but that she should go in person and permanently to that crude environment had not been anticipated. Those who had known her in her life of normal luxury, of dancing and playing, and of deliciously rhythmic personality, would have laughed at the idea as absurdly incongruous. Of this fact the young man had heatedly reminded her on the night when she gave back his engagement ring and announced her determination.

"Juana," he had expostulated, with a suffering of hopelessness in his eyes which she ached to comfort—"Juana, dearest, courts and juries and the barons of militiamen have struggled to civilize those savage people, and for a hundred years they have utterly failed. Their one god is Implacable Hatred."

"I shan't go with juries or bayonets," she had retorted.

"You will go without knowing them, their ways, their point of view."

"I don't know them now, but I will know them."

"You haven't even a letter of introduction."

"I never heard"—her voice rang with a note against which he knew the futility of argument—"that the Savior needed letters of introduction."

And so an imagined heartbreak and a crumbling world of illusions—as she fancied—had driven her suddenly into self-appointed exile—and a mission.

Her education had been pointed to fitting her to oversee such work—done by the hands of others. Even then, had not he and all the rest goaded her with their insistent refrain, "You can't do it?" Now she was here.

She drew herself up straight as she sat on the stile and impatiently dashed away the moisture from her eyes. If that other man had only had in him the iron wasted on this desperado, Anse Haver! She rose at last and went unwillingly back to the cabin.

The host sat barefooted before the fire and talked with the missionary. The girl heard their conversation through the dullness of fatigue, wondering how she was to sleep in this pigsty, yet restrained from asking permission to retire only by her embarrassment and unfamiliarity with the native code.

At last she heard Brother Talbot suggest: "Hit's gittin' ter be late an' we've got a toilsome long way ter journey tomorrow. I reckon we'd better lay down."

Juana began counting heads. There were six in the room, and the boy Jeb was yet to return from the dance, and while she was still trying to work out the problem the woman pointed to a corner bed and suggested: "I reckon you'd better bundle in with Dawn."

She saw the girl crawl into bed just as she was and the missionary's kick off his brogans and shed his coat. Taking off her own boots and jacket, she slipped between the faded "comforters" of the sheathless couch.

In five minutes the taper was out and the place was silent save for the crackling of the logs. The little girl at her side lay quiet, and her regular breathing proclaimed her already asleep. In another five minutes Juana, with closed eyes and burning lids and aching muscles, heard the nasal chorus of snoring sleepers. She alone was awake in the house.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," "The After House," Etc.

"I have not seen her," he said. "I am always looking. Perhaps she is wise to break with us all. Still, we loved her. I have never married, and she was like my own child."

He had taken a clerkship in London, he said. While, of course, he did not say so, Ward read between his words that he was done with the old life for good. He held out his hand and the Russian took it.

"I'll hear anything," Boroday said. "I'll let you know. Once or twice she wrote me; from Liverpool once, after she landed, and again from here. Then the police closed up the Dago's place, which was the only way she knew to reach me. I've never heard since."

"Then you think she may be in England?" Ward asked eagerly.

The Russian shrugged his shoulders. "Perhaps, if she is living. She was not strong. Sometimes I wonder—"

So, after all, Ward took an "extra" pang with him from the chance meeting. What if, after all, his waiting and waiting meant nothing? If she were gone, beyond earthly finding? Death for him might be a blessing, a door to eternity, but all the philosophy and hope of his faith did not fill his empty human arms. That night he walked the London streets until dawn.

On the last Sunday before he sailed he attended church in Saint Paul. He knew the church well. In those earlier days when philosophy had taken his young brain by storm and his faith had cracked, he had gone to Saint Paul's. Some was very true, the solidity of the old church, in its antiquity, in the nearness of those dead-and-gone great ones of the earth who had lived and died secure in its teachings, had steadied him.

And now, when it waltz his heart that failed, and not his soul, he went there.

It was there that he found Elinor. She was sitting in front of him, in the prim garb of an English army nurse. And it was no resemblance that roused his first interest. What he saw was only a slender girl, hunched, and evidently in tears. She was very thin; he saw that, and her shoulders heaved convulsively. But as the service went on she grew quieter. When she rose from her knees, she was quite calm.

It was then that he knew her. Ward watched her with an ache in his throat. She looked frail, sad. Always in his mind he had pictured her as a girl, a girl who was very thin, who looked that night in old Hilary's library, the night when, to save him, she had told him the shameful truth about herself. And now he found her here, wearing the garb of service, and on her knees!

So fearful was he of losing her that he stayed close as the congregation moved slowly out of the church. She did not intend to go, or to leave herself among the flowers, or as she had looked that night in old Hilary's library, the night when, to save him, she had told him the shameful truth about herself. And now he found her here, wearing the garb of service, and on her knees!

And so it was that they came face to face again. She put her hand to her throat, with the familiar gesture, which she saw him. For a moment neither of them spoke. The ordinary greetings were out of place, and what was there to say?

It was Ward who spoke at last. "Elinor," he said, "it seems quite possible, Elinor."

She had never been "Elinor" to him save in his thoughts. But neither of them noticed.

"I'm sorry you have found me. I have tried so hard to bury myself."

It was increasingly hard for him to speak. All the things that had lain in his heart for three years clamored for release since the day when he had said: "You are quite well again?"

"Perfectly. But you? You are thinner."

"I have worked hard and, of course, I have suffered. It was not easy to tear myself away from the few friends I had—"

And then, at last, he broke into speech, rapid, incoherent. He blamed himself for his hardness that night in old Hilary's library, he condemned himself for a thousand things. She listened, rather bewildered, with the old-fashioned look in her eyes.

"Why should you say such things?" she asked at last, when he stopped from sheer panic. "You were right. I was a criminal. I have been learning this since the day when you were always kind to me. I have never forgotten."

"Kind?" He almost groaned. "She held out her hand. 'I must go now. My time is not my own.' She glanced down at her uniform. 'Do you remember what you said to me once about the brotherhood of man. I have been trying to live up to that.'"

Ward took her hand. It was very cold.

"Do you remember that?" "I remember almost everything you told me. Even the things, that night, when I was watching the clock. I remember them all."

The church was empty, save for a verger here and there, busy about his duties. Quite suddenly Ward lost his composure.

"And I—I remember everything, too. Your smile, your eyes that night when I was carried into the house—"

Oh, my dear, you are written on my heart."

He bent over her, shaken and pale, and kissed the palm of her hand.

"It is you who are good," he said humbly. "I, who talked smugly of virtue and tenderness and pity, and who let you go out of my life—I care for you more than I care for anything in this world. I want you—I want you."

Elinor's eyes turned toward the high altar with its cross. Always when she looked at it, she had seen the cross at Saint Jude's, and the dawn, and sparrows drinking out of the wet gutter at her feet.

"I want you," said Ward, and waited, frightened.

But her eyes came back to him, clear and full of promise.

"I have always loved you," she said simply. "I will go with you. And your God shall be my God."

THE END.

A BATH NEEDED.

"Six months ago I had a little home of my own, but I made an unfortunate marriage. My wife's temper kept me in hot water all the time."

"Hm! It's a pity there couldn't have been a little soap with it. Six months did you say?"

Dinner Stories

An advance agent for a theatrical production was speaking to a newspaper man with reference to the wonderful powers of the leading woman.

"Do you know," he said, enthusiastically, "that in New York when she appeared as the dying mother in the last act an insurance man who had written her a policy for $10,000—actually fainted in the theater."

The witty Samuel Wilberforce, bishop of Oxford, had no patience with admirers who persisted in regarding him with others of his cloth, as extraordinary important.

A lady who met him one day at dinner evidently felt obliged to keep the conversation at a high level. She began with much solemnity.

"My lord, you must have had a great many serious questions to deal with in the course of your life. What is the most tremendous difficulty you have had to encounter?"

The bishop's napkin was slipping away from him.

"Keeping a dinner napkin on this silk apron of mine," he said, as he clutched it.

Among the guests at a social event was a tenor who sang with considerable force. About 12 o'clock he started to say good night to his hostess.

"Oh, please don't go yet, Mr. Smith," cried the fair hostess. "I want you to sing for me."

"I am afraid it is too late. Mrs. Jones," answered the tenor. "I wouldn't care to disturb the neighbors."

"Oh, that's all right," was the quick rejoinder of the hostess. "I want to get square with them for playing that horrid phonograph."

STARTED THE BELLS RINGING

Young Man Knew How to Do Act to Equal Any of Those Done by "Spooks."

Conversation in the smokeroom of the hotel had got round to haunted houses, and gruesome yarns of mysterious noises and unaccountable bell-rings in a house in the immediate neighborhood were being recounted.

But there was a skeptic in the party who made himself heard.

"Come to that," he said, "I ought to be pretty good in the haunting line. I reckon I could make a dozen bell-rings in this very place without touching one of them."

"Nonsense!" was the universal chorus, and the young man said never a word. Instead, he opened a cupboard door near by and turned off the gas.

In less than two minutes every bell in the house was ringing, and by the time fresh light was shed on the subject the old hands had to admit that the "young'un" certainly knew something.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Japland," Season's Newest Offering. "Japland," one of the largest traveling organizations, employing the joint services of John W. Vogel's Big Minstrels in its entirety, also a complete cast for opera, a girl chorus of twenty, concert band and double symphony orchestra, will be seen at Myers Theatre, Saturday matinee and night, Oct. 2nd. The book deals with the world's tour of a famous grand opera company which encounters opposition at Tokyo with an American minstrel. An informal reception in their honor is held in the tea garden of the Mikado, the band and orchestra of Vogel's Big Minstrels furnishing the music for the occasion. A grand double performance in the form of an out-of-doors cabaret is the result of the meeting, the artists of both combinations endeavoring to outdo the other that the Mikado and his entourage is entertained in royal American fashion. The minstrels give their first part in costume, and the operatic contingent sing selections from the many compositions in their vast repertoire. The specialties including a duet from "Pinafore," a trio from "Lohengrin," the Swan Song from "Lohengrin," "Three Little Maids from 'The Mikado'" and the Sextette from "Lohengrin." The specialties including the beautiful girl chorus lures the hearts of the Japanese onlookers with ravishing tangling gyrations and prancing and play in the act and fourteen scenes—all carried by the company—and is pictorially as well as for gorgeous costuming, a grand spectacle entirely worth while, superior in every way to that seen with the average road show.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Annual Visit of Our Friends Mutt and Jeff in a New Dress.

Once again the merry-making Mutt and Jeff will be with us. The season of laughter is about to begin. Mutt and Jeff in a brand new dress comes to the Myers next Monday, Oct. 4, with a bigger and a better show than ever appeared before the public, under the well known title. Giving Mutt and Jeff a new and superior production each successive year is an act of diplomacy on the part of Gus Hill. His eccentric characters can live for a century or they can die as dead as a "Door Nail" in sixty days, if allowed to do so, but it is decided to the interest of both Mutt and Jeff and Gus Hill to see them live for years innumerable, which they will do as long as Fisher is able to furnish "New Dope" and up-to-the-minute comedy situations and as long as Gus Hill furnishes a new and acceptable vehicle for their stage work. Both of these gentlemen seem to be successfully keeping up their part at the Myers Theatre. Mutt and Jeff in College will represent the "last word" in musical comedy production, everything being brand new but the same. The American public never wanted to laugh more than they do at this time. They seek comedy in motion pictures, when nothing else is available. Gus Hill's mission since his entry into the theatrical producing game has been to make people laugh. He is the acknowledged dean of cartoon comedy productions, never having offered a play of this sort that did not prove a success. It is therefore distinctly evident that the enormous success of Mutt and Jeff in College is due to proper handling, by catering to the wishes and desires of the entertainment public. This season's show consists of a sixty foot car load of scenery, properties and costumes. A cast of fifty capable artists and the inevitable chorus of pretty girls, which the "Phun pest" would be incomplete. Don't miss Mutt and Jeff in College at the Myers Theatre, Monday, Oct. 4.

In addition tonight there will be shown one of Kleins' "Phun Jests" in Foreign Lands and the Pathe Illustrated News.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Mac Marsh Stars in "The Outcast" Tomorrow.

Tomorrow's masterpiece at the Majestic is a visualization in four reels of Thomas Nelson Page's story "The Outcast." Although they did not know it, both The Girl and The Judge were victims of environment. The girl was of the slums, with every inducement to go wrong, except the sympathy and care of Bob, her lover, who was himself a prisoner on parole. The Judge, on the other hand, had no sympathy for such; he was hard, inexorable. The Girl and Bob had their fair share for the future, but they seemed shattered forever by the series of events that brought her before The Judge on a charge of manslaughter. She had been followed home one night, there had been a struggle in the dark hallway, a shot, and she had found herself with a smoking revolver in her hand, and beside her, the limp figure of the man who had wanted to come between Bob and her. The young attorney assigned to her case had one hope, that her lover, who he sent to the former home of the girl's mother, might bring some one to testify to her irresponsibility.

MY WIFE VOTES FOR THE FIRST TIME TOMORROW AND AS SHE MAY BE TIMID, I'LL ESCORT HER TO THE POLLS!

Our Old Friends "Mutt and Jeff" Who Will Be Seen at Myers Theatre Monday Evening, October 4th.

But the case dragged on to the verdict. Then, before the sentence was passed, an old attorney from the country town appeared, bringing back the locket, and with it, a letter. The girl's lawyer looked them over and asked the old man to take the witness stand; "It will not be necessary to mention the father of this defendant," he said quickly, handing the locket to the judge, "but I will ask the witness to identify this photograph as the girl's mother!"

And then a strange thing happened; the Judge turned ghastly gray. It was the beginning of a new life for the girl and Bob. How events shared themselves you must see the picture to enjoy.

Petrograd Is Well Protected By Fortified Places On Isle

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—"Kronstadt, the island that guards the imperial city of Russia, Petrograd, is the most strongly fortified place in the northern empire," begins a statement on war geography just given out by the National Geographic Society. "The fortifications on the island were begun by Peter the Great in 1703, after the dispossession of the Swedes. They have been added to and strengthened by many first-rank engineers in every reign since then, until today they form a formidable obstacle to any fleet that rides the seas. Kronstadt is the port and outpost defense of the Russian capital, the seat of the Russian admiralty, and the first naval station of the fleet. The port city is situated on the island of Kotlin, though it is generally written under the name of its well-known port city."

"The older, 'three decker' forts of Kronstadt, five in number, repulsed the Anglo-French fleet during the Crimean war. These redoubts today, although mounting modern ordnance, are largely obsolete but powerful forts and sunken batteries have been installed to keep pace with the development of the naval armaments of neighboring States. The defensive works of the island and adjacent shores have been carried out on an extensive plan, much of it being done according to the specifications of Tordleben, modified and brought up to date by succeeding engineers. Fort Constantine and four batteries were constructed by Tordleben to defend the principal, or southern approach while seven batteries were placed to guard the wharves and lower northern channel. The modern works are low, powerfully armored and reinforced, and mounting heavy Krupp guns in turrets. Earthworks link up the chains of redoubts."

"The island on which Kronstadt stands, lying nearly in mid channel at the head of the Gulf of Finland, is the front door of Russia. It is so situated as to make the bombardment of the capital impossible before the passage of its forts and batteries. The island is twenty-one miles west of Petrograd and stretches for eight miles east and west, in the midst of the pocket-like gulf. Its guns are within perfect command of the channels between, and their effectiveness extends well into the country beyond the water. It is fortified by parallel lines on the northwest, southwest and south-east. The southern line of defenses is the strongest. Altogether, the island leaves little in the way of naval supremacy to Heligoland and Gibraltar."

"Formerly most of the imports into Russia by way of Petrograd were landed at Kronstadt, and thence taken to the capital by lighters and by land. Canalization, however, has made it possible for larger freighters to reach the Petrograd docks, and this has somewhat cut down the importance of Kronstadt as a commercial harbor. The port city is situated at the eastern base of the island, well sheltered from hostile attack, and it commands three harbors. The commercial harbor has wharves and anchorage for 1000 ships. The central harbor is equipped for the building and repairing of merchant vessels, while the remaining harbor is devoted to naval usage. It is equipped with excellent machine shops, dry docks, and other facilities peculiar to the modern navy. This harbor offers a secure anchorage to the Russian war vessels, behind the island and protected by the weight of powerful fortifications."

FOUR NEW NAVY BOATS FOR AUSTRALIAN FLEET.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 30.—The cruiser Brisbane and two torpedo boat destroyers, which will be launched at the Cockatoo Island Naval Dock Yard during the next two months, will add considerably to the Australian navy. The Brisbane will be the first cruiser entirely constructed in an Australian yard by Australian workmen. She is named after the capital of Queensland, and is a sister ship of the Sydney—the victor over the Emden—and the Melbourne. She is 3,500 tons displacement and is armed with six-inch guns. The two destroyers are the Torrens and the Swan.

TRY THIS OLD TIME WAY TO DARKEN HAIR

Sulpho-Sage is Based on Formula Favorite for Generations.

An investigation among the druggists in town shows that the most popular treatment for restoring color to gray hair is the good old fashioned Sage Tea and Sulphur mixture. You can get it freshly mixed by asking your druggist for a 50c bottle of Sulpho-Sage. This fine toilet preparation has all the merits of the old time compound plus the benefits of other highly valuable ingredients. It is widely endorsed for restoring gray, faded or streaked hair to its natural color. But a few applications are needed to bring back the rich, glossy shade that every one admires, and produces a fascinating luster. It is pleasant to apply, works so naturally that no one knows you are using it. SMITH DRUG CO.

THE FINNS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART

"The Finns, traces of whose almost unrecorded way are to be found today from the Balkan Peninsula to the coast of Alaska, have played no inconsiderable part in the development of Great Russia," says the latest bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society. "In Russia proper, the Finns predominate in the lake region of the north. The Lake District, where forests replace farm and pasture land and where the chief means for livelihood are hunting and fishing. The whole of this country, likely was once occupied by the Lapps, whom the Finns drove northward. The Finns, in turn, were pressed backward by the Slavs, but they left many thousands of strong Finns behind, and a strong backward strain of Finnish blood runs in the veins of Muscovy."

The Russian Tsar rules over millions of Finns in Russia proper, a people distinguished for their honesty and stubbornness, all of them plain of feature, with light hair, often as white as prepared flax, with prominent cheek bones, broad flat noses, wide nostrils, flat foreheads, and pointed chins. This general type has been largely varied by inter-marriage between Slavs and Finns, and the resulting product has proved a most happy one. As firm as our own granite, the Finns say of themselves, and their Russian neighbors bear witness to their quality of being headstrong in the proverb. Once light a fire among Finns and it will burn throughout eternity."

The Finn is the most highly prized servant in Russia, because, in sharpest contrast with the Russian peasant, he will not steal. In Finland, or among Finns, the Russians say, it is never necessary to make use of a lock and key. The Russian and Finn display the same love for getting drunk and for going to church. The peasants of both races are admirably regular in their pursuit of these pleasures. Moreover, the Finn and the Russian are alike superstitious. The least of the newborn child is thrust into the open door of the stove in order that its family's hearth spirit may become acquainted with it. Now and again, this introduction has been fatal to the baby. The Finns also believe that the dead member of the family lingers in the household forty days before taking its final departure."

"The Finn thoroughly enjoys bathing, and shares with the Japanese the custom of both sexes bathing together. Finns predominate in the country north of the Duna, or Dnieper river, where the Germans are now attacking. Here they are agriculturalists. Farther north, they are Russia's fishermen, trappers and hunters. They catch forty or more kinds of fish in the Lake District, the best of which they send to the big markets to the south. Their own diet consists almost entirely of fish and coarse bread. They mix stale fish with their food and make a flat cake, to enjoy which the stranger first needs considerable experience and resolution. "The peasants hunt squirrels in winter, when their fur is thick and valuable. The pelts are sold at the Nijni Novgorod fair. They also hunt over bear and game birds, the last of which are killed recklessly for the big city markets as long as the case in this country. Russia's store of game birds still appears inexhaustible, and with her vast northern forests and plains teeming with this life, with her ten thousand lakes rich feeding and breeding grounds for duck and geese, there has been little need of curtailing the activity of the peasant hunters. Many thousands of tons of hare are killed for the city tables. The northern peasants, however, are satisfied with their fish, their coarse bread, their onions and their turnips. One marked difference between the Finnish and the Russian peasant is that while the Russian seldom goes beyond an hour's march of the steaming samovar and the teacup beside it."

ISLAND OF CEYLON REBELLION SUFFER SINCE JUNE, REPORT

Berlin, Sept. 29.—"Private reports from British Island of Ceylon," says the Over Seas News Agency, "are to the effect that the entire island has been in a state of rebellion since June, and that all the tea plantations on the island have been destroyed, more than 2000 persons having been not during the rioting."

U. S. NAVY PLAYING AT WAR WHILE HER RIVALS ARE IN IT

Fleets Stripped For Action Play "War Game" For Practice—Conditions as in Real War.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 30.—While naval forces of Europe are in death grips, the United States navy today was playing at war. The gray fleet of Admiral Fletcher, comprising over eighty vessels, was stripped for action—actual war conditions prevailed among the thousands of bluejackets and marines, but their sham battle was in marked contrast to the real conflict abroad.

For the next few days the semi-annual "war game" will occupy the entire Atlantic fleet. The battle ground this fall is off the southern Atlantic coast. Last spring the war game was held off the northern coast. Hampton Roads is the present base of operations. The "fighting" will occur at sea.

The fleet is divided into two divisions—the Red and Blue fleets. The actual strategic maneuvers to be worked out are being kept a profound secret. None but the highest officers of the fleet are advised of the two fleets are practically sailing to sea under sealed orders.

According to the best information today, the Red and Blue fleets will engage in an action off the defenses of Charleston, S. C. Navy yard, the Portsmouth navy yard and test the defenses of Fortress Monroe, which guards the entrance to the nation's capital and the Chesapeake.

Conditions on the fleet today were those of real war. Grim, earnest and determined, as if a real battle, the fleet is being tested. Submarines, battle cruisers, scout ships and mine layers are to take an important and larger part in the maneuvers. Some of the battleships have been "doctored" as to their armor plating.

Naval hydroplanes will also take part in the war game as scouts. Rough practices with the air craft is hoped for—to test their ability to return to their stations in heavy seas. Signal practice and torpedo tube drills will also be given.

Upon the war game depends to a great extent the policy of naval defense to be adopted by the coming Congress. The success of the submarines will be a factor in determining how extensive the submarine building program will be.

ROCKFORD MAROONS PLAY CARDS SUNDAY

Team Which Gave Cardinals Bad Trimming Early in the Season Plays Here Sunday.

Encouraged by the change in the weather, a game has been scheduled between the Rockford Maroons and the Cardinals. The game will be played Sunday at the Association Park diamond. The Rockford Maroons gave the Cardinals a bad trimming early in the season when "Cuddy" Butters was doing the pitching for the Cardinals. Carlson, Three-Eagle pitcher, will be on the mound for the Maroons and Higgins is expected to do the pitching for the Cardinals.

FIND WEAK SPOTS IN HIGH ELEVEN

Coach Dutcher Gives Squad Stiff Practice in Line Work—Freeport Canceled Game for Saturday.

The game last Saturday served as a lesson for the high school eleven, for it pointed out the weak spots in the line and backfield and showed where changes should be made. This week Coach Dutcher has been giving the squad some stiff line practice. The line was the weakest in last Saturday's game, but with the addition of a few new men, who have shown up strong in this week's scrimmages, it will be in a different condition. One man who has shown up good is McEay, and he will undoubtedly be placed in the tackle position. In the backfield Pond and Richards have been tried out and one of these men will probably play one of the half positions with Lee and Cronin as the other members.

Little Willie Kober, the midsize quarterback, has been playing a good game and he is about the best man for that place. The other positions will probably be filled by the same men that played last Saturday.

Yesterday afternoon Coach Dutcher received a call from Freeport reporting that they could not have the game at Freeport. The game was canceled for Saturday.

The schedule as it is now is as follows:
Oct. 9—Stoughton, here.
Oct. 16—Freeport, here.
Oct. 23—Monroe, there.
Oct. 30—Beloit, there.
Nov. 6—Madison, here.
Nov. 13—Open.

President Baker of the Phillies announces that he will play his games on Friday. This is a small park and with every available spot used for temporary seats and stands built outside of the walls of the enclosure it will not seat 25,000. Baker's argument that his grounds were good enough for the fans during the regular season and therefore would be good enough for them during the world series is not good business judgment. More people could be accommodated at Shibe park, and, of course, the receipts would be increased.

PHILLIES CINCHED PENNANT DEFEATING THE BOSTON BRAVES

Can Lose All of Remaining Games and Be Winner—Detroit Still Remains in Race With Red Sox.

Philadelphia's victory over the Boston Braves yesterday clinched the National league pennant for Moran's team as the win put them full eight games ahead of the Braves. Brooklyn in third place is but a half a game behind the Braves and a merry battle is promised for third place. The Cubs, by taking a farewell shot at the Cincinnati Reds by the score of 5 to 4, edged a little farther to the fourth place as they are half a game ahead of Pittsburgh, the Chicago Nationals being seventeen full games from the Philadelphia club.

In the schedule for today the Phillies meet the Braves again and the other teams play the same clubs as yesterday. In the American league yesterday, Boston was idle and the Detroit bunch had their needs by beating St. Louis 3 to 2. They are but four games behind and six to go. Chicago still holds third place by winning Cleveland 13 to 6, while Washington split even with the Mackmen. The Sox are five full games ahead of Washington and twelve and a half games from the top.

Schulte's Bat Again.
Chicago, 30.—The home-run Schulte saved the Cubs from another defeat yesterday when he scored three of the Cubs' runs on long distance clouts. The first time he amped to the plate he doubled, without results. The second trip, however, the Cub star slugged unbelkied a homer that counted two runs. This Schulte's twelfth homer this season. In the ninth when the Cubs were deadlocked in a tie and the Cubs were threatened with a slip into second division again, Schulte slipped in the crisis and brought the Cubs home a victory by the score of 5 to 4.

Hippo Vaughn pitched after Zabel was removed, due to an injury. Zimmerman and Good also walloped home runs. The leading wobbly on both teams. Lear pitched the entire game for the Reds and his fast ball was easy for the Bruins.

Beat the Recruits.

Cleveland, 30.—The Chicago White Sox closed the baseball season in Cleveland by beating the Indians. The score was 13 to 8, after a poor game filled with boners and misplays. The Sox took things easy on the Sox and took things easy on the Sox. Maybe he was saving his strength for the city series. Cleveland used five pitchers and a number of recruits whose onehead plays allowed the Sox to romp away with the game.

Alexander Did It.
Boston, Sept. 30.—The Philadelphia Athletics won the National League championship for 1915, with Alexander pitching a one-hit game against the present title holding Braves. The score was 5 to 0. The Athletics of the city series is possible for the league leaders to lose all their remaining games and still have a clear title to first place.

Among the spectators of the game were some of the Boston American players, the probable competitors of Philadelphia in the world series. Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox watched the play carefully. "It seems to be a well-rounded combination, but I'm sure we can beat them," he remarked during the game.

It was "Patsy Moran day" at the Braves' field and several thousand persons turned out to honor the visiting manager. Most of them came from Pittsburg, Mass., his home town. Among them was David I. Walsh, governor of the state, who presented Moran with a great floral horseshoe.

The new champions clinched their honors in the first inning. Bancroft's single to right and Rudolph's pass to Faskert, was followed by Carrath's home run, which brought the latter's home-run record to twenty-three.

A triple by Faskert sent another home in the fourth, and Cravath cracked a double to left and Luderus a single there for a fifth run in the seventh inning.

Tigers Still Breathe.

Detroit, Sept. 30.—Crawford's double to the right field fence in the ninth, scoring Cobb and Veach, gave Detroit a 3 to 2 victory over St. Louis here today. Had the Tigers won, they would have been clinched by Boston. The teams play here tomorrow to decide another postponed game.

BOSTON EARLY FAVORITE IN THE SERIES BETTING

New York, Sept. 29.—First intimations of how the sporting fraternity views the chances of the Phillies and Red Sox in the first game of the world's title came today. Fred Schumm, the betting commissioner, announced he had money to place at 6 to 5 on the Boston club to win. It has been pretty generally thought that the clan of Carrigan would enter the annual classic a favorite in the betting, but actual quotations of odds have been held off until a definite announcement is made of the date for starting the series.

STAR SPEED PILOTS RACE ON SATURDAY

Speed Kings Will Clash in First Race Over New Plank Speedway in New York for Astor Prizes.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Sept. 30.—The greatest galaxy of speed kings ever gathered about one track, with the start's gun here Saturday in the first 350-mile race for the Astor cup on the new Sheepshead Bay course. About thirty cars are scheduled to make the start, but it is probable there will be some eleventh hour withdrawals.

Hopes of an American made car carrying off the honors rested largely on the Stutz and Maxwell entries. There are four Stutz cars, two of them piloted by Earl Cooper and Gil Anderson, who finished first and second respectively in the recent Minneapolis race, and at Elgin they divided the two big road races between them. Eddie Rickenbacker in his Maxwell also is expected to make a bid for honors.

The Peugeot entries are considered the most dangerous—both the cars and their drivers. There are five of them, each with a driver of international fame—Dario Resta, Bob Burman, Howard Wilcox, Johnny Aitken and Ralph Mulford and his well known cigar will be seen at the wheel of a Delage, and Ralph DePalma, who won the five hundred mile race at Indianapolis last May, will pilot a Mercedes.

Besides the custody of the Astor cup prizes aggregating $50,000 will go to the winners. There has been pronounced by the drivers working in practice spins as almost perfect. The motor-drome is constructed of wood, steel and concrete and will accommodate nearly 200,000 persons. The course is two miles, with two straightaways and two banks.

BELOIT FIVE LOSE TO MILLER'S SQUAD

Janesville Pin Experts Defeat Jen-son's Team by 382 Pins in Match Last Night.

By rolling two eight hundred games in the evening, the Miller's five defeated the Jenson's squad from Beloit at Miller's alley last night by the total score of 2462 to 2080. Tonight the Janesville team meets the Beloit five from Fort Atkinson.

Dickenson topped off the match last night by bowling over a score of 220 in the second game which was far ahead of any of the scores of the other contestants. The general scores were behind the usual averages. Not a Beloit man touched the two hundred mark. The final count showed the Janesville five to be winners by 382 pins.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Phillies' great pitcher, has achieved one of his ambitions, that of striking out 1,000 batsmen in five years. He accomplished the feat against Pittsburgh on Sept. 13, 1915. Secretary, being the victim.

E. G. Hudson's Statement.

E. G. Hudson, Chambliss, Ga., writes: "Last year I bought and tried Foley Cathartic Tablets. I have tried many cathartics, but for a thorough cleansing movement of the bowels without the slightest inconvenience or sickening, I believe the Foley Cathartic Tablet the best on earth. It's a perfect cathartic, with no bad effects. Everybody suffers occasionally from indigestion or constipation, so Mr. Hudson's experience is worth remembering. Stout persons say these tablets relieve that 'heavy' feeling."—W. T. Sherer.

It seems hard to believe, but it is a fact that there actually are several colleges where the candidates for the football teams outnumber the coaches.

Bob Edgren, New York's foremost boxing authority, agrees that Matt Hinkel as president of the American Boxing Association was right in ruling that Johnny Ertle became champion, when fouled by Kid Williams in the recent St. Paul bout. Edgren writes: "The conflicting statements of referee, physician and various spectators leave the situation in shape for another match, and Ertle and Williams will probably meet again. In the meantime Ertle holds the title, for Williams' disqualification, an official referee is as definite and final as a knockout."

Tom Jones gave the sporting writers of Milwaukee a banquet the other night and took the occasion to declare that within ten days he will post $10,000 in cash to bind a match between Ad Wolgast and Champion Freddie Welsh.

One by one they are knocking all the romance out of football. Last year it was the all purpose drinking cup that got the boot. This year it's the specialty of the game. Football will be the sidelines lemon. An athlete is all in from a kick in the slats. As he lies on the ground the sponge is shoved into his mouth. He takes a pull, wets his mouth, gets up and runs countless yards for the winning touchdown! But now, at the university of Rochester they've found the sponge is unsanitary, so it's been given the gate. Other schools are expected to follow Rochester's lead.

That portion of the coming world series which will be played in Boston next month, will be played on the Braves' field. That owner Lannin would make this change was indicated some time ago. It is strictly a business proposition. Last year the Boston American league club turned its park over to the Braves for the world series, and it is but natural that Gaffney should reciprocate by offering the Braves' park to Lannin on this occasion. Fenway Park, the home of the Red Sox, under the most favorable conditions, with temporary seats and all, could not take care of more than 30,000 spectators. The Braves' field has a seating capacity of 43,000. This will be ample room to accommodate all those who wish to see the games, and the playing field will not be curtailed by reason of temporary stands as has been the case of numerous occasions in world series games.

Dan McKetrick, New York fight promoter, has broken out with a challenge to all boxers in the lightweight, welterweight and middleweight divisions. The rector, Fred Callahan can clean up the lightweights, White, Melling and Mandot. He says Bartfield is the recognized welterweight champ—Dan doesn't say where he's recognized. And then he says that Young Ahearn has Gibbons and the rest backed off the middleweight horizon. It looks, though, as if Dan overlooked a bet in not rounding up a man who could lick Kibane and Johnny Ertle before he started his cleanup.

Certainly Ty Cobb deserves all the credit that is coming to him for having steered some mighty bases this season, thereby breaking Clyde Milan's record of eighty-eight, but what about the old timers? Harry Stovey, with the Athletics back in 1885, stole 156 bases in the same season. He was early as August to reappear. Fohl, like Moran, Fohl is a veteran catcher and is well known as a developer of young talent. Fohl seems to have a system which gets the best out of a player and which makes for general harmony. Moran evidently has a similar system, for he has taken a club that wasn't even considered by the experts before the race and drilled them into a world's championship possibility.

William M. Johnston, the new national tennis champion in singles, has defeated the unusual feat of defeating five of the first ten ranking players in America this year. Although he was ranked sixth by the
